

Plans for Embargo On European Loans To Face Congress

Senator Borah Says More Than One Billion Dollars Has Been Advanced From Private Sources.

OPPOSITION IS LED BY MANUFACTURERS

Government on Record as Disapproving Loans To Countries Which Have Not Settled Debts.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, October 13.—Today, for the first time, something like a definite statement came from the administration about loans made by American private bankers to European governments. France was not mentioned, and it was only possible to infer that would be the attitude our government if an application should now be made by France to New York Bankers for a loan. The inference, from what was said today, was that our government would not approve such a loan. It was stated that no change has been made recently in the government's policy and it is thoroughly understood that the government's policy for about six months past has been not to approve loans to governments which have failed to take steps to refund the debts they owe the American government.

Washington has no official statutory control over loans made by New York and other American private bankers to European countries. Ever since the war ended, however, it has been the practice for American bankers, whenever they were engaged in negotiations looking to a loan to Europe, to ask our state department whether it has any objection. It has been the practice of the state department to consult one or two other members of the cabinet and give an informal reply.

The government formulated certain loose rules to the effect that loans to European countries by American bankers ought to be approved if the money was for praiseworthy purposes, but should not be approved if the money was destined to be used for military or other undesirable purposes. Generally the term "other undesirable purposes" came to include unsound financial practices. That is to say, if a European government were borrowing money merely because it had not the courage to reduce its expenses or to raise its taxation, such loans came to be included in the category of "other undesirable purposes."

NEW SCHOOL SITE BOUGHT BY BOARD

Plans for Sylvan Hills School Takes Definite Shape When Education Board Buys 16 Lots.

Purchase of 16 building lots in Sylvan Hills, consisting of a total of two and three-fourths acres, as a site for a proposed public school in that section of Atlanta was authorized Tuesday afternoon by the board of education. The total cost of the property will be $12,000 and the city will pay $500 down and the remainder in four annual payments.

Alderman C. M. Ford was principal speaker in behalf of the purchase and pointed out that this section is growing rapidly and the last census showed 187 children of school age living there. He said it is one-half mile from the Oakland City school, and said the Stewart Avenue school, which also serves this section, is in deplorable condition.

The board transacted much routine business relating to repairs of school buildings, acceptance of resignations

PITTSBURG EVENS SERIES AS KREMER BEATS SENATORS

Home Run by Eddie Moore, of Pittsburgh, in Fifth Clinches Battle 3-2 for Buccaneers.

SENATORS' RALLIES FAIL TO PRODUCE

Both Teams Now Have Won Three Games Each With Deciding Contest To Be Played Today.

Pittsburg, October 13.—(AP)—Pittsburg's hopes for a world baseball championship, which had all but faded out of the picture for 1925, came back today into full swing on the wings of a lusty home-run drive by Eddie Moore.

Until today the young Pirate second-sacker had been only a cog in the machine, inconspicuous for the most part, but tonight he is the hero of a victory that pulled the Pirates up on even terms with the Senators, each with three triumphs apiece, and extended the series to its seventh game limit tomorrow.

Buttressed by the brilliant, at times invincible pitching of Ray Kremer, and a defense that was shock-proof in every crisis, Moore's single stroke in the fifth inning produced the winning margin of a 3-to-2 triumph that marked another advance in the sensational comeback of the National league champions, and stirred a home-town throng of 44,000 fans into delirious enthusiasm.

It was the second straight victory for the Pirates, now on the high tide, dashing and confident that they will go on to reach the goal that last was gained by the club in 1909. It was also the second time Washington had seen that one badly needed triumph escape from their grasp—escaping them after it seemed Walter Johnson's shutout game of Sunday had adjusted the laurel wreaths on their brows.

Victory Margin Slight. It was only by something around the margin of a foot today, however, that the Senators lost their chance for a decisive victory, for only that slim distance prevented Joe Harris from getting a home run and tying the score in the ninth inning on one of the most terrific hits of the series by a towering drive that sailed far over Max Carey's head in center field, landing on the fly close to the top of the far bleacher barrier. It was held to only a double and Harris was stranded at the middle-bag, but in any other sector of Forbes field it would have been a home run.

Aquatic Flirts Put To Flight By Police Navy

Sea-Going Flirts on Fair Lake Routed in Maritime Clash.

Sea-going mashers who made merry Monday night at the expense of chorus girls in the Ernie Young revue at the Southeastern fair, were routed Tuesday in the first "naval battle" in which the Atlanta police department has ever engaged, it was disclosed by Captain Gordon, now admiral of the maritime forces of the Southeastern fair police contingent.

The Southeastern fair "navy" was organized Tuesday at the plea of dainty dancers in the musical show, a nightly event at the fair this week, who protested against the flirtatious advances of a veritable "rubber row" of Atlanta swains who rowed out on the lake opposite the chorus girls' dressing rooms improvised from the boat house in front of the grandstand.

With two of the strongest oarsmen on the police force supplying motive power and two other officers, one in the bow of each of the two speedily skiffs composing the navy, armed with long poles having stout hoops on their ends, the navy lay in wait in the shadows along the bank of the lake Tuesday night for the invasion of youths.

The first—and probably the last—naval battle came when the police battalions charged the first pair of row boats which lined up, just out of the arc of electric lights, shortly before the performance began. One of the fugitive vessels was overhauled, but its skipper plunged overboard and swam to shore.

TRAFFIC FORCE SENT TO BEATS BY NEW ORDER

Mayor Sims Orders Chief Jett To Keep Traffic Officers Only at Vital Points Downtown.

NEW SIGNAL SYSTEM TO HANDLE TRAFFIC

Police Board To Hear Details Tonight of Clashes Between Officers and Citizens.

All traffic officers, with the exception of one at each congested area in the heart of the downtown section, were removed Tuesday afternoon by special order of Acting Police Chief E. L. Jett from their accustomed posts and thrown back into the residential sections of the city to do regular patrol duty.

This action on the part of Chief Jett followed receipt of a letter from Mayor Walter A. Sims in which the chief executive stated that he regarded it a waste of manpower to keep officers on street corners downtown when the signal lighting system was installed for the very purpose of relieving the city of this necessity.

"Of course, we may have needed traffic officers for the first few weeks to direct traffic and bring about an observance of these signals until the public was educated as to the workings of the system, but it has been in operation long enough for the public to understand it thoroughly by now," the mayor said.

Denies Clash Influence.

Chief Jett made it plain Tuesday that the mayor's action was not influenced in any way by the clash Monday night between Officer H. O. Hambrick and M. Rives, 26, of 520 Washington street, which resulted in both the officer and Rives being carried to the Grady hospital for medical treatment.

"Neither did the fight between Officer J. B. Peavy and C. R. Sheeler, of Baltimore, Md., last Friday have anything to do with the mayor issuing his traffic instructions today," Chief Jett stated.

Officer Peavy, by special order of Chief Jett to Captain Grover C. Fain, was the morning detainer, while the officer and Rives being carried to the Grady hospital for medical treatment.

Rives Trial Continued. The trial of Rives, which was set for Tuesday afternoon in recorder's court, was continued until Wednesday afternoon at the request of Rives, who stated his witnesses were not present.

Officer Hambrick intimated that he was interested in finding out who the witnesses were that Rives said were absent from the courtroom, as, according to the officer, these are likely the two who assisted Rives in the latter's alleged to have attacked the officer.

Chairman A. J. Orme, of the police committee, and Commissioner C. V. Garland Cooper, both stated Tuesday night that they were interested in seeing that the clash between Officer Peavy and Sheeler, and also the one between Rives and Officer Hambrick be thoroughly probed.

"If a thorough investigation dis-

ATLANTA RECEIVES INCH OF RAINFALL

More Welcome Precipitation in Offing, Is Prediction of Local Weather Bureau Chief.

More than an inch of rain fell in Atlanta Tuesday—the heaviest precipitation for any day since July 26—and more rain is just in the offing, ready to help make up the deficiency of more than 20 inches already recorded for this year, according to the local weather bureau.

The measurement of rainfall Tuesday night after a number of hours of rain, showed that 1.12 inches had fallen. The rain, Mr. von Hermann said, was general over the state, and further rains also will drench all sections, he predicted.

Some relief from the shortage of water at the Georgia Railway and Power company's reservoirs in north Georgia is expected to come from the latest downpours, but much rain must fall, it was stated, before any material relief will be afforded.

Temperatures all during October have been above normal, with the exception of one day, last Saturday, according to Mr. von Hermann. No change in prevailing temperatures is expected within the next few days, it was said.

The highest temperature recorded Tuesday was 70 degrees, and the lowest reached was early in the morning at 64 degrees.

New Orleans, October 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—The question of divorce was brought before the house of deputies of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church here today. The first action was acceptance of a report of the committee on canons recommending that a resolution be presented from the southern diocese of Ohio dealing with the question be rejected.

This resolution would have given bishops the right to inquire into phases of divorce other than legal application of a divorced person to marry again. The ecclesiastical authorities of the diocese, under the terms of the resolution, would have been the final authority in determining social and ethical questions connected with a divorce.

Marriage Sanctity Association.

Shortly after rejection of this resolution the beginning of a fight to place an absolute ban on the marriage of divorced persons in the church was marked by introduction of a resolution by the Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity church, New York, for the Sanctity of Marriage association. The resolution was referred to the committee on canons.

The church law now provides that an innocent party in a divorce, with certain restrictions, may remarry. The resolution introduced today would

Woolworth Jewels Returned POLICE BAFFLED AS "WHITE ELEPHANT" REAPPEARS As Mysteriously As Stolen

New York, October 13.—From secret channels of the underworld, jewels worth $685,000 have been returned to Mrs. Jessie Woolworth Donahue, the daughter of the late F. W. Woolworth of five-and-ten-cent store fame. They disappeared during the same secret channels, from her suite at the Plaza hotel here September 30, while Mrs. Donahue was taking a bath.

Who stole them, who returned them, the police profess not to know, but they claim an arrest is expected. At 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon a man with a little brown package entered the office of Police Inspector Coughlin. The man was Noel C. Scaffa, private detective, and in the little brown package were the two remarkable pearl necklaces and a diamond ring. Scaffa would not talk on "advice of his lawyer" until he saw Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora.

Inspector Coughlin at once got in touch with Pecora, James P. Donahue, husband of the thief's victim, and John B. Nash, Donahue's lawyer. In a little room in the criminal

ALLISON REELECTED PRESIDENT AGAIN

Dixie Highway Party Guest at Woman's Club This Afternoon and on Ansley Roof Tonight.

Atlanta will be host today and Thursday to several score prominent visitors, members of the Dixie highway motorcade, who will arrive here between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The visitors, good roads enthusiasts from middle western states, including the president and other officials of the Dixie Highway association from southern states, will be guests upon their arrival here of the Atlanta Woman's club. Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the club, has arranged for a large welcoming committee and will serve visitors with coffee and sandwiches at the club on Peachtree street at 5 o'clock.

Tuesday and Tuesday night were spent in Chattanooga, the annual election of officers taking place Tuesday morning at the Hotel Patten, with Judge M. M. Allison, of Chattanooga, being reelected president for the tenth year of existence of the Dixie Highway association.

More than two score other officers were elected at the meeting, following addresses by Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution; Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of The Times; and W. T. Anderson, publisher of the Macon Telegraph. J. Stacy Hill, Ohio director, and Captain W. S. Gilreath, of the Detroit Automobile association, divided at Chattanooga.

The motorcade will divide in Chattanooga, one section coming to Atlanta via Rome and the other via Dalton. All along both routes citizens will welcome the visitors, school children will wave greetings and at a few places brief halts will be made, where the welcome will take a more official nature.

At Marietta, prominent citizens of that city will personally greet visitors, while a delegation from Atlanta, headed by Frank T. Reynolds, of the Ansley hotel; Fred T. Newell, of the chamber of commerce, and others will formally welcome the motorcade. Mr. Reynolds is scheduled to give a brief address of welcome, telling the motorcade that Atlanta is waiting to welcome them in proverbial southern style.

As previously arranged, the motorcade was to have reached Atlanta early this afternoon, after which the visitors were to be guests at the Woman's club for refreshments, and then journey on to Stone Mountain for a while in the afternoon. The late arrival, however, has necessitated postponement of the visit to Stone Mountain until early Thursday morning.

Miami Is Terminus.

The motorcade left Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., several days ago, proceeding at moderate speed through the middle west, and stopping at principal cities along the route. The party will continue from Atlanta along the Dixie highway to Miami, Fla., the southern terminus of the highway and the objective of the motorcade.

Several hundred Atlantans are expected to attend the informal meet-

GENERAL STAFF HITS CHANGES IN AIR SERVICE

Proposed Department of National Defense Declared "Unsound"—Mismanagement Denied.

AIR CHIEF'S PLAN SCORED IN REPORT

"Every Branch of Army Desires Additional Funds for Efficient Work," Drum Says.

Washington, October 13.—The army general staff presented to the president's air board today a statement in rebuttal to witnesses who have urged sweeping changes to the national defense organization.

It denounced as "unsound" the proposed department of national defense, asserted that "direct administration and control" of the army air service actually does rest "in the hands of the chief of the air service" and presented a general denial of charges of mismanagement in the administration of the air service itself.

Presented by Brigadier General Hugh A. Drum, as its chief of staff, the statement, covering 51 type-written pages, was prefaced with the remark that "the war department has considered with painstaking thoroughness and care the various propositions and views presented to the board."

"The main proposals," it added, "have been studied in one form or another before, during and since the world war. Consequently the war department had crystallized its views on air service organization into sane, definite and well-thought-out policies. These views were concurred in by a chief of air service, Major General Mason M. Patrick."

The "were" in the last sentence of the above quoted paragraph was underscored in the official text of the statement.

The statement presented by General Drum then discussed "fundamental principles of war disarmament policies," and presented a detailed analysis of the proposed department of national defense as advocated in recent testimony by General Patrick, Colonel William Mitchell and several other witnesses.

Ideas Unsound.

"It is believed," General Drum testified, "that the ideas expressed by the chief of the air service are fundamentally unsound in his conception of a new national defense doctrine whereby the theater of operations along our frontier is to be divided into three 'theaters of action,' sea, air and land, each with a separate commander, responsible for national defense in his respective theater."

The general staff also was said to view as "unsound" the proposal of a separate air corps within the army, urged by General Patrick as a step looking to creation of the defense department.

Asserting that "air units are essential to an army and must be an integral part thereof," General Drum added that "we must not be blinded to the sacrifices of the American doughboy."

"The practice of horses," he continued, "the boom of cannon and the whirl of airplane propellers cannot replace the dogged determination, the 'will to win' of the American infantryman."

BOND ORDINANCE TO BE PRESENTED

Mayson Engaged in Drawing Up $12,000,000 Measure for Submission to Council Monday.

City Attorney James L. Mayson is at work drafting the ordinance providing for a bond issue of $12,000,000 for various improvements in Atlanta and carrying with it a proposal to increase taxes 25 cents per $100 to finance the bond issue and will have the measure ready for submission to council next Monday. The ordinance is being drafted following recommendations by the special bond committee of council.

In their report after their recent meeting the members of the special committee asked that the city attorney so draft the ordinance that $400,000 will be provided from the $2,000,000 sever bond issue to pay for the expenses of making a modern topographical map of Atlanta showing cross sections of every foot of territory in the city. This map is absolutely necessary before proposed sewer improvements can be carried out intelligently, according to a statement made to the committee by W. A. Hansell, chief of construction.

According to Chief Hansell any plan to rebuild the Atlanta sewer system and establish new sewage disposal

YAARAB WORKERS TO HEAR REPORTS IN DRIVE TODAY

BIG SCORE BOARD TO SHOW PROGRESS

$200,000 on Million-Dollar Goal Slated To Be Turned in at Session at Ansley.

Many Pledges of Funds and Cooperation Are Received From Atlanta and North Georgia.

Three hundred and fifty workers in the Yaarab temple building fund campaign who are attempting in the brief period of ten days to raise $1,000,000 for erection of a magnificent Shrine mosque and civic auditorium at Peachtree and Kimball streets, will make their first reports of progress at a luncheon on the roof of the Ansley hotel at 12:15 o'clock today.

The report luncheon will be presided over by A. S. Adams, general chairman. A. A. LaVaque, Atlanta organization chairman, will call for official reports, and he asks that all signed pledge cards be turned in to the campaign auditors. The progress each team has made in its 48-hour working period will be shown on a big scoreboard which completely covers one side of the spacious Ansley roof from floor to ceiling.

Chairman Adams announced Tuesday night that Arthur Nash, who was the inspirational speaker at the opening campaign dinner Monday night, had contributed $100 to the building fund, making the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children beneficiary of the Yaarab temple loan certificate he will receive.

Lauds Hospital.

"Monday afternoon, before your big dinner meeting, I had the pleasure of making a trip through the wonderful crippled children's hospital," Mr. Nash told Chairman Adams. "I found it in truth a veritable 'Temple of Babies' Smiles.' The stories I have heard that the terribly crippled boys and girls who go about their halls, wearing braces or on crutches but otherwise in perfect health, are the happiest human beings on earth, were more than fulfilled."

Mr. Nash is not the first to help the crippled child work by loaning to the Yaarab fund. A number of other campaign subscribers have made their pledges on a similar basis, selecting equally worthy philanthropies as beneficiaries of the money they are subscribing.

Airship Wins Race To Halt Grim Tragedy

Death Threatens as Plane Drops Half of Landing Carriage.

Mitchell Field, October 13.—An airplane raced with death on the last lap of the last event of the national air race here Tuesday. Death lost.

A huge Douglas transport biplane, piloted by Captain E. W. Duncan, of Langley Field, Va., dropped half of its landing carriage near the end of the race for the Detroit News trophy.

Duncan sped on as the crowd watched at the fate that faced him when he tried to land. Ambulances and fire trucks were assembled in preparation for the tragedy which seemed inevitable.

Lieutenant E. H. Barksdale rushed into the air in a fast De Havilland, overtook the damaged transport and by gestulations warned the pilot of his danger. It was learned afterward that Duncan had become aware of trouble a moment before. With minute care he guided his plane to a slow landing. As it was, the machine was badly damaged, but the occupants were unharmed.

Lieutenant E. E. Harmon, of the army, won the race, which was open to airplanes capable of carrying a minimum of 2,000 pounds of freight and a crew of not less than 340 pounds. He covered the 120-mile course at an average speed of 119.91 miles an hour. Lieutenant C. S. Schilt, of the navy, was second and Lieutenant K. B. Wolfe of the army third.

Klansmen Hear Address By Wizard Evans—Judging Events To Close Cattleman's Session.

Pike county's exhibit in the agricultural department of the Southeastern fair was awarded first prize by the judges Tuesday afternoon, with Monroe county second, and Lamar county third. Washington county was given fourth place; Truettlen, fifth; Montgomery county, Ala., sixth; Spalding county, seventh; Clayton county, eighth, and Worth county, ninth.

The Pike county exhibit covered the space of three booths in the exposition building and included a complete representation of all its products, agricultural and live stock with special departments for women's work and lavish display of canned goods made on farm homes.

Crowds See Features.

The musical comedy revue in front of the grandstand which is the featured night entertainment at the fair this year, centered the interest of thousands in attendance Tuesday night after it was decided that the race track, wet by afternoon rains, was not in condition for the mammoth Ku Klux Klan parade which had been scheduled as the chief event of the evening.

The Klan day note was carried out in a spectacular fireworks display upon conclusion of the revue performance, the representation of Stone Mountain surrounded by a fiery cross, drawing cheers of hundreds of hooded members of the order who continued to throng the fair grounds after it had been decided officially not to attempt the parade.

Race track experts here with the score or more of noted stables with entries in the grand circuit races said Tuesday night that the track would be in condition for resumption of racing at 1 o'clock this afternoon unless unusually heavy rains should fall during the forenoon.

Assurance was received late Tuesday in a telegram from R. E. L. Cone, member of the airplane exposition committee of the fair association, that the air show originally planned for the fair but tentatively cancelled when the Shenandoah was wrecked last month, would be held probably Thursday with the appearance in Atlanta of the largest passenger airplane ever seen in the south. The plane, according to dispatches from Mr. Cone in New York, would take off sometime today for a flight to Atlanta with five passengers on board, reaching here probably Thursday.

Atlanta Day today, in conjunction with Merchants' and Manufacturers' day, will bring to a close the biggest week in the history of the fair, leaving only three days more during which the $12,500,000 worth of exhibits will be on display. The Rubin & Cherry midway shows, the Ernie Young musical revue, hippodrome acts, fireworks, racing, cavalry drills and other entertainments will be open to

Dwight F. Davis Is Appointed As New Secretary of War To Succeed John W. Weeks

Resignation of Weeks on Account of Poor Health Is Formally Announced at White House.

Washington, October 13.—(AP)—Dwight F. Davis, of Missouri, today was appointed secretary of war.

He takes the place of John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, whose retirement because of ill health, was formally announced at the white house.

As assistant secretary Mr. Davis has been actual head of the war department since last spring when Mr. Weeks was sent to New England by his physicians for an operation and a long vacation.

In his letter of resignation the retiring cabinet member said it had become apparent that he must greatly prolong his vacation if he is to completely regain his health. President Coolidge replied that he acceded with great regret to the secretary's insistent request that he be permitted to lay down the official duties he assumed when the Harding administration came into office in 1921.

The new secretary, a lawyer and business man in his 47th year, is the youngest member of the cabinet. He has served in the national guard and reserve corps, has been an active official of various financial, educational, charitable and recreational organizations, and is the donor of the Davis cup, the most celebrated of tennis trophies.

Followed G. O. P. Advice.

In selecting him, President Coolidge followed the recommendations of the republican organization of Missouri and the advice of a powerful group of political associates who contended that the next cabinet place should be allotted to the west or middle west.

The change wipes out the representation of the president's home state, Massachusetts, in his official family, and reduces to four out of ten the number of cabinet members who have their homes east of Mississippi river. It likewise presents the unusual picture of two unrelated men of the same family name holding concurrently the title of secretary. As secretary of war, Dwight F. Davis will sit near the head of the cabinet table, while as secretary of labor, James J. Davis sits at its foot.

The new war secretary comes into office with combat experience in the world war to assist him as well as his work of the last two years in administrative problems of the war department. He was a captain in the fifth Missouri infantry in 1917, and later was a lieutenant colonel with the 35th division in the Argonne and St. Mihiel offensives. He was awarded the distinguished service medal and was twice mentioned in orders for gallantry in action.

He first entered politics in his native city, St. Louis, in 1907 when he was elected to the old St. Louis house of delegates. His connection with civic affairs included service as park commissioner from 1911 to 1914. He opposed the late Selden P. Spencer for the Missouri governorship in 1920 but was defeated. President Harding made him a director of the war finance corporation in 1921. Two years later he became assistant secretary of war, in which post he was charged by law with developing complete plans for industrial mobilization in the event of war. It fell to him during Mr. Weeks' absence to deal with such troublesome questions as the air service controversy. His handling of that problem and his suggestion that the president appoint a special board to clear the atmosphere are believed to have been great factors in the determination to name him as Mr. Weeks' successor in the cabinet.

WEEKS PREPARES TO TAKE VACATION.

Washington, October 13.—(AP)—John W. Weeks, secretary of war, today stepped out of public life today, relinquishing his office as secretary of war to Dwight F. Davis, assistant secretary, world war veteran and holder of the distinguished service medal for gallantry in action.

Mr. Weeks will leave Washington tomorrow night to begin a six months period of leisure and travel which his physicians hope will bring him complete restoration of health. He deferred his departure in order to be present tomorrow when Chief Justice Taft, at his personal request, administers the oath of office to Mr. Davis.

In all his nearly quarter century of public service Mr. Weeks has never known a moment of greater pride than came to him today after the announcement that he had found it necessary to resign. There was an immediate outpouring from the white house, from cabinet members, from his associates in the war department and from friends and citizens of widely different political faiths, testifying to the admiration and respect in which he was held and to the regret with which his withdrawal from public life was viewed.

In his letter of resignation the retiring secretary made it clear that his physical sufferings of the last few months had in nowise dimmed his keen interest in public affairs and particularly in the problems of the war department.

Letter From Weeks.

Correspondence exchanged between President Coolidge and John W. Weeks incident to the latter's resignation as secretary of war was made public today at the white house. The letter from Mr. Weeks read:

"I regret that it seems unwise for me to serve any longer as secretary of war. Due to your kindness I have continued in office during the past six months hoping that about this time I would be able to resume active duty. While my health has greatly improved and I hope to recover it ultimately, I am not now in condition to undertake the responsibilities of an intensive occupation and my doctors inform me that I shall not be able to do so for some months.

"It seems to me that in justice to you, the best interests of the military service and the proper consideration of the important non-military problems entrusted to the war department, I should no longer hold an office I cannot adequately fill. I therefore respectfully tender my resignation. In doing so I want to express my entire confidence in the success of your administration and my sincere regret that I cannot continue officially the pleasant relationships I have enjoyed with you and your advisers. Thank you for the kind consideration you have shown me during my service as a member of your cabinet."

Reply of President.

The president replied:

"Your favor notifying me of your final determination to resign as secretary of war on account of your health has been received with a great deal of regret. I am pleased to know, however, that your physical condition is growing more hopeful each day and that with a relief from official duties there is prospect of a good recovery.

"I recall that you were entering public life 21 years ago when you came to Northampton to speak during your first campaign for election to congress. You have had the distinction of serving your home city, being a member of the national house and senate and sitting in the cabinet under two administrations.

"Perhaps no more valuable suggestion was made to congress during the war than the proposal you made for preparing for peace. It will remain, with the law for national forests which bears your name, as a tribute to your statesmanship. I cannot dispute that this entitles you to feel that you have given all that could be required of you in looking after the affairs of your country. I value your ability so much and appreciate so highly the familiarity that your long experience in Washington has given you with the affairs of government that I feel your retirement to be a distinct loss.

"My personal relations with you have been such that I feel that the country is losing a valuable public administrator and I am losing intimate contact with a friend. Your wise conduct of office as secretary of war has been a great satisfaction to me and it is a well-earned leisure that private life will afford you. I trust you will fully regain your strength and find time to continue your interest in the well-being of our country. The administration of your office has been such that you will go down in history as a great secretary of war.

"In accepting your resignation I extend to you every good wish for your continuing welfare."

MYSTERY WOMAN Baffles Police OF DEKALB COUNTY

Decatur, Ga., October 13.—(Special)—Dekalb county authorities tonight continued their baffling search for relatives of a young woman taken into custody early this morning and who gave her name as Catherine Darby, 21, claiming that she and four other persons, whose names she gave as Nettie Bell Darby, her sister; Ralph Darby, her brother, and Ben Smith, her uncle, and four others, were victims of an automobile wreck near here. She was taken into custody scantily clad when she called at a residence on McDonough road for shelter, and is called the "mystery woman."

She claimed the party was wrecked in a ride from West Palm Beach, Fla., and that White and her sister went to find a doctor, and her brother and uncle left to find a garage man. Police went to the place of the alleged accident but were unable to find any trace of the wrecked car. The party was en route to Louisville, Ky., she declared. Up until a late hour tonight police had found no trace of other members of the party.

FRENCH OFFENSIVE MOVE IN MOROCCO ENDED FOR WINTER

Paris, October 13.—French offensive operations in Morocco have ended for the winter, it was announced at the Quai D'Orsay Tuesday.

This formal announcement that "offensive operations now can be considered to be terminated" is not accepted as meaning that the French soldiers in Morocco will become altogether inactive. Instead, they will strengthen the lines to which they advanced during the offensive of the past month and engage in minor movements against the enemy.

Shoals Commission To Resume Studies Today, Is Belief

Washington, October 13.—(AP)—The Muscle Shoals commission will resume sessions tomorrow and continue through next week when they expect to begin to draft their report which they will file with President Coolidge. Efforts have been made during the days of recess to bring together the two factions in the commission over the question of government or private operation.

closes that the officers acted in line of duty and were treated inconsiderately and cruelly, as it has been charged. I believe it is the duty of the police committee to commend the officers and let the force recognize that the committee will stand back of them to a man as long as they conduct themselves properly and are diligent in the discharge of their police duties," Councilman Cooper stated.

Chairman Orme stated that Chief Jett had promised to have before the committee at its meeting tonight, a detailed report of the trouble between Officer Peavy and Sheeler. "At that time I will be in position to more intelligently make a statement," Chairman Orme stated.

Other members of the committee could not be reached Tuesday night.

plants would be mere guesswork without the topographical map to guide the engineers in carrying out the plan.

It is probable that the ordinance will be introduced in council by the whole bond committee and not by any individual. The measure provides $5,000,000 for schools, $2,000,000 for sewers, $2,150,000 for waterworks, $1,750,000 for a new city hall, $500,000 for Battle Hill tuberculosis sanitarium and $900,000 for viaducts.

The measure also provides for the appointment of a special bond commission of 17 members to direct the disbursements of the bond funds. This commission is to be named prior to the election by the mayor. One member of the commission will be appointed from each ward and five members from the city at large. This makes the proposed commission the same size as the present bond commission.

Under the proposed ordinance the bond election is to be held on the first Wednesday in December.

WOOLWORTH JEWELS RETURNED TO OWNER

comment on suppositions that the little broen burse worth the ransom of a princess was left where he could get it, or that he actually received it from the hands of the thief.

"Hints that a hard and fast, though unwritten, code of the underworld, would not permit exposure of the thief, were met with shrugs and bland, knowing smiles.

"It wasn't until after the 'conference' that Mrs. Donahue was informed of the recovery, Donahue said. As he left the criminal court building he said he was on his way to the plaza to tell his wife all about it.

But she will not see her pearls and diamonds Tuesday night. They are in the hands of the police. "Pending possible developments," District Attorney Pecora said.

Continue Probe.

This adds weight to the statement that police are continuing their investigation, although it is whispered that the case really is a closed matter.

Pecora's statement, after the conference, was as follows:

"I have questioned Mr. Donahue at great length. He has told me all he and his wife know. John B. Nash, (the lawyer) was present and so were Inspector Coughlin and Detective Coleman. Scaffa, private agent for the Federal Insurance company, told us everything he could. The police in conjunction with Scaffa's agency will continue their investigation for the apprehension of the thief."

"It is not deemed advisable to give any of the details relating to the return of the jewelry because it would jeopardize the success of the investigation."

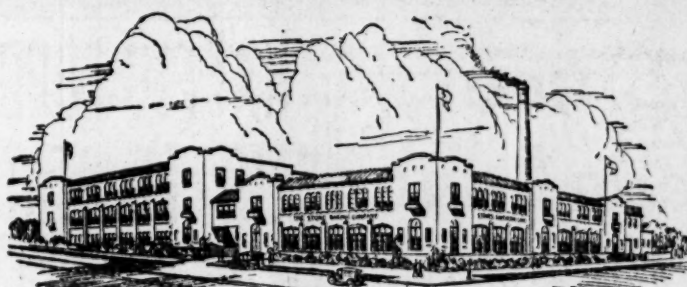

Case Puzzles Police.

The Donahue theft is one of the most difficult which has confronted the police department. It occurred while Mrs. Donahue was in her bath in the plaza suit. Her jewels were in another room and when she returned to that room the jewels were gone. The apartment was not ransacked. Scaffa, it is said, received an anonymous letter several days ago and since then it has been openly hinted the jewels would be returned. And they were. But how, only the inscrutable Scaffa and the thief know.

GOOD SHOES FOR EVERYBODY. FRED S. STEWART CO. ATLANTA, GA.

Thousands Are Sick Without Knowing It

Tiredness, Poor Appetite and Skin Eruptions Betray Impure Blood.

If you are not succeeding as you want to, the fault may not be yours. A sick man cannot do his best—and you may sick without knowing it. Thousands are.

Impure blood saps your energy. It leaves you chronically tired, unable to carry out your plans, unable to keep up interest in anything. Your appetite gets dull and finicky and your skin may break out with pimples.

All these are warnings. They mean that your blood is not getting rid of all the waste your body pours into it. Instead, your blood is carrying this poison back through your body. And this, if not stopped soon, means indigestion, anemia, rheumatism—sometimes even paralysis.

Clean out your blood and give your body a chance. Taylor's Blood Medicine, the most amazing blood tonic ever made, will help you to success just as it has given youth and health back to thousands of others during the last twenty-five years. Taylor's Blood Medicine is the standard blood purifier of today, just as it was a quarter of a century ago. No blood tonic can beat its remarkable results.

The reason is that only the purest vegetable ingredients are used in Taylor's Blood Medicine, together with Iodine of Potash, which gives it power to destroy the poisonous acid in your veins. It is a soothing tonic for your stomach and energizes all the vital organs.

Men and women all over the south give credit to Taylor's Blood Medicine for giving them back their strength and health after they had suffered for years from rheumatism, chronic indigestion, stomach and kidney trouble and other ailments caused by impure blood.

Mr. M. I. Maney, of Asheville, N. C., is one who declares that he "would not take $1,000 for what Taylor's Blood Medicine did for me." "I began taking Taylor's Blood Medicine two years ago," he writes, "and have not had one touch of rheumatism since."

Get a bottle of Taylor's Blood Medicine from your druggist today. This is the time of year you need it most. It will help ward off serious illness later on. And remember to insist on Taylor's Blood Medicine and accept no substitutes. Taylor's Blood Medicine has proved its great worth for decades and is sold for $1 a bottle—a money-back guarantee.

SAYS BREAK SHOWS WATER MAIN NEEDS

The break in the 36-inch water main at Tenth street and West Peachtree Saturday afternoon shows the urgent need of another large water supply main from Hemphill avenue to the center of the city, according to W. Zode Smith, general manager of the waterworks. The cause of the break is unknown. The pipe was laid fifteen years ago.

A 48-inch main is needed to supply to the center of the city, and a 36-inch main is needed to supply the western part of the city. Bonds for the construction of the main are vital necessities," Mr. Smith stated. "Atlanta must add more facilities for supplying water, and it cannot be done except through issuance of bonds."

Motion picture producers are turning to musical comedies for their plots. If they find any there'll be a lot of surprised dramatic critics.—Toronto Telegram.

SCHOOL FOR NEGROES OPENED AT FT. VALLEY

Fort Valley, Ga., October 13.—(AP) Dedication exercises were held here today for the Royal C. Peabody Trade school, an addition to the Fort Valley High and Industrial School for Negroes, several hundred students and friends of the institution, including a number of visitors from the east, attending. Dr. Howard Melish, rector of Holy Trinity church, Brooklyn, delivered the dedicatory address.

Dr. Melish told the life story of the late Royal C. Peabody, for whom the institution was named, and whose interest in education for negroes began while he was a young man in Columbus, Ga.

The building is a two-story brick structure erected by the student body at a cost of $25,000 and was the gift of Mrs. Royal C. Peabody and her son, Charles S. Peabody, both being present at the dedication. Among others present were George Foster Peabody, of Saratoga, New York; Miss Carlys Peabody, of Brooklyn; Mrs. George Robins, of Plainfield, New Jersey.

The building was accepted by H. A. Hunt, principal of the school, who pledged the donors the efforts of faculty and students to make worthy use of the gift. The school will be used for the teaching of carpentry, bricklaying, plastering, painting, shoe-making, blacksmithing, auto repairing and other trades. The school will be used for the teaching of carpentry, bricklaying, plastering, painting, shoe-making, blacksmithing, auto repair-

Cemetery Committee Will Hear Request
For Removal of Bodies

Hearing on a request by J. H. Todd that he be given permission to remove bodies of his father and mother from the Sardinia churchyard cemetery to the old Todd burying ground on the estate of the late J. C. Todd on Greenwood avenue, will feature a meeting of the cemetery committee of the city council Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

It is understood that a number of residents of the community are opposed to the request. Mr. Todd asserted that his father requested that he be buried at the Todd burying ground in his will.

In order that such a permit be granted, it would be necessary for the city planning commission to order the territory rezoned as a cemetery, and an ordinance passed by the city council, as no cemeteries are allowed, except by specific direction of council.

A. M. E. Church Opens Conference Today At Lumpkin Church

Lumpkin, Ga., October 13.—(Special.)—Preparations for the Southwest Georgia conference of the A. M. E. church, which begins sessions here Wednesday morning in the First church, of which Rev. R. A. Holmes is pastor, have been completed, and hundreds of negro churchmen and leaders from all parts of the state tonight were arriving for the meeting. Bishop J. S. Elmore, of Atlanta, will preside at the sessions.

Many changes are expected to be made in assignment of pastors and other church officials at this session in accordance with an announcement of Bishop Elmore last year, and the entire A. M. E. organization will follow the proceedings of this meeting with interest, leaders said tonight. The conference is one of the largest in the entire state and is made up largely of agricultural interests.

Presiding Elders J. I. Stringer, of the Blakely district; J. B. Lofton, Columbus district; John Cooper, Cuthbert district; J. T. Barr, Donaldsonville district; J. H. Bryan, Tolbert district; and F. M. Johnson, Arlington district, will ask pastors in their charges to make detailed reports concerning the moral, intellectual, spiritual and financial condition of members of their charges.

Included among the leading pastors to the conference are Revs. M. A. Fountain, of St. James; C. P. Hobbs, of St. John and H. J. Peoples, all of Columbus; S. D. Hall, of Cuthbert; G. C. Thomas, of Port Gaines.

Other positions of important charges are: L. H. Wimbley, G. M. King, C. H. Matthews, W. C. Perry, N. W. Williams, W. B. Powell, T. P. Proctor, N. B. Brown, W. A. Smith, J. E. Sumner, J. H. Smith, E. D. Bowman, C. H. Moss, A. L. Shotes, M. D. Donaldson, N. T. Johnson, C. H. West, M. L. Fleming, B. J. Shackelford, J. W. Williams, J. R. Harris and W. J. Dennis.

RANDOLPH O. JONES, ALLEGED SCHEMER, INDICTED BY JURY

Randolph O. Jones, of the Co-Operative Shirt and Silk company, with offices at 311 Wynne-Claughton building, was indicted Tuesday by a Fulton county grand jury on two misdemeanor counts charging selling of tickets representing a lottery.

The scheme Jones is alleged to have perfected started when an agent of the company sold tickets for $1 each. Persons to whom tickets were sold were to take them to the company's office and purchase three other tickets for the price of $1 each. These tickets were to be sold to three of their friends. The consideration involved was that when the three friends of the first party brought in their tickets and purchased three additional tickets, the first party was given a quantity of ladies' wearing apparel.

Here the endless chain of negotiations began. Each of the three persons who were sold tickets by the first party brought the tickets to the office of the company and purchased three additional tickets, paying $3 for them, which they sold to three of their friends. The friends of the first party brought in their tickets to the company and purchased three other tickets, the second parties were entitled to a quantity of ladies' finery or merchandise, and so on.

Ben Goldberg and L. H. Straus, of the Gold Hosiery company, were indicted on one additional misdemeanor count charging selling of tickets representing a lottery.

Goldberg and Straus were indicted Friday on five misdemeanor counts charging maintaining and operating a lottery.

Their alleged lottery scheme is said to have been practically the same as that of Jones, except hosiery is involved as a consideration instead of women's lingerie and merchandise.

Four persons were injured in a series of automobile accidents Tuesday.

Mrs. Mattie Mabry, 26, of 402 Oakland avenue, was treated at Grady hospital early Tuesday night for slight bruises and cuts which she told physicians were received in an automobile accident. She did not say where the accident occurred and police had no report. She had a laceration on the right cheek and minor bruises on the arms.

Mrs. H. L. Bailey, 21, of 15 Fortness avenue, received minor bruises when she was struck by a taxicab Tuesday night at Five Points. She was carried to Grady hospital and later dismissed after being treated.

Oscar McCord, 12, of 179 Greenwich avenue, had his left foot mashed when a truck ran over him, he told physicians at Grady hospital. The accident happened near his home, he said.

W. A. Taylor, 35, of Wryalls, Ga., was treated at Grady hospital for minor injuries which he said he received in an automobile accident. He would not state where the accident occurred.

The regular weekly luncheon meeting of officers of the 122d infantry, Georgia national guard, has been postponed from today at noon to Thursday at 1 o'clock.

The postponement was announced by Colonel Charles H. Cox, regimental commander, to permit the colonel and his staff to participate in welcome economies arranged for Vice President Charles G. Dawes, who arrived here Thursday morning. Colonel Cox and his staff will meet the visitor and escort him to the Capital City club as a part of the military feature of the occasion.

The meeting will be held as usual in the rainbow room of the Ansley hotel at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, upon completion of the plans for welcoming of the vice president.

Epworth Leaguers Hear Noted Pastor Talk on "Life Service"

Dr. George R. Stewart, of Birmingham, Ala., widely-known Alabama minister, was principal speaker at the rally of the Atlanta Epworth League union at the Wesley Memorial church Tuesday night, on "Life Service."

Other features of the program included the missionary pageant presented by group 3 of the Epworth League union, and the singing of the Sterling quartet.

The Atlanta Epworth League union includes 32 Epworth leagues of the north and south Atlanta districts and practically every league was represented. It is estimated that between 2,500 and 3,000 Epworth leaguers and their friends were present. Claude S. Bennett, president of the union, presided at the meeting.

TWO YOUTHS CHARGED WITH STORE BURGLARY

Two white youths, Russell Maxey, 15, of 54 Flora avenue, and his companion, David Hinton, 15, of 100 Flora avenue, were arrested Tuesday night by Call Officers John H. Crankshaw and C. G. Hughes on charges of burglary of the grocery store of J. W. Wallace, 17 Flora avenue.

The front window of the store had been smashed and W. P. Turner, of 7 Flora avenue, told officers he saw the boys put their hands through the broken window and get some articles from the shelf. The boys denied any knowledge of the affair except that they had seen another boy take some articles.

They told police that the window had been broken for some time. Both will be arraigned in recorder's court today. The fact that the youths reside in DeKalb county places them outside the jurisdiction of the juvenile court.

ATLANTAN LEAVES FOR BIG DAIRY SHOW

John M. Gibson, associate editor of the Cream Field, left Atlanta today afternoon for Indianapolis to attend the national dairy exposition being held in the Indiana city this week.

CONFEDERATE VETS BEGIN STATE MEET

Albany, Ga., October 13.—(Special.)—An open air concert by the 29th infantry band of the United States army and a brilliant reception by the Dougherty county chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy here tonight opened the annual state reunion of Confederate veterans. The convention will continue through Thursday, with the first business session slated to take place at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Albany is gaily decked with bunting and more than 400 veterans are attending the meeting. Many special entertainment features have been arranged by the program committee and Dougherty county is doing its utmost to make this a memorable occasion for the "heroes of the sixties."

Addresses of welcome and greeting will be delivered by Mayor E. H. Kalmon, of Albany; Mrs. Frank Harrold, president general of the U. D. C., and Mrs. Walter Grace, Georgia division U. D. C., when the meeting begins formally Wednesday. The response will be made by General J. A. Thomas, honorary commander in chief.

Following the afternoon session an automobile ride through the city will be tendered the visitors and a grand march, led by General W. B. Freeman and Miss Harrold, General Thomas and Miss Whitehead and General D. B. Morgan, state commander, and Mrs. Morgan, through the principal business streets of the city, will be staged at night. Sons and Daughters of the Confederacy will give a dance immediately afterwards.

Thursday morning's session will be featured by election of officers and selection of a meeting place for next year. The afternoon session will be short, being in the nature of a farewell gathering, and the grand parade will follow. Members of the general staff and their ladies, 29th United States infantry band, members of Georgia division U. D. C., sponsors and maids, Albany guards company H. 121st infantry, officers of the 325th United States infantry, members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, members of Veterans of Spanish-American War, Sons of Veterans and Boy Scouts will participate.

BIG PASSENGER PLANE MAY ARRIVE TODAY

Work is slated to get under way this morning in clearing Candler field and making other necessary arrangements for the appearance here today of one of the largest passenger airplanes ever seen in the south, it was announced Tuesday night.

The plane is scheduled to make a one-day trip from New York to Atlanta and will fly over the fair grounds several days of the closing week of the great Southeastern fair, it is stated.

Officials of the fair association were informed of the arrangements for the appearance of the plane in a telegram received from Robert E. Lee Cone Tuesday.

The plane is a French Brignet type and the property of a clothing firm of St. Louis, Mo.

Claims of Madden In Air Testimony Backed By Crisp

Americus, Ga., October 13.—(Special.)—Congressman Charles R. Crisp today authorized the statement that he stands squarely behind Chairman Madden, of the house appropriations committee, in the latter's declaration that congress has never failed to provide adequate appropriations for proper maintenance of the army and navy air services.

Judge Crisp is a member of the appropriations committee of the house, and today said that so far as he can remember no appropriation measure ever submitted to congress by the responsible heads of the army and navy for air service development and maintenance had ever been trimmed by that body.

"Congress has done its full part in an effort to develop an adequate military air service," said Judge Crisp.

HOW TO HAVE A CLEAR HEAD

Here Is What You Have So Long Been Seeking?

Do you get up in the morning with a stoppered nose? Are your breathing passages clogged with a cold? Does your head feel choked up and dull? Have you that mean, low-spirited feeling which comes from lack of proper oxygen? If so, here is a pleasant, harmless cigarette that will clear out the head, nose and throat.

These cigarettes are the formula of Dr. J. W. Blosser, and are composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries.

Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes contain no tobacco, no cubes, nothing habit forming, and are entirely harmless. They are used by women and children as well as men. These are not to be confused with the "cubes" or other similar cigarettes.

It is so simple to inhale this pleasant and soothing smoke. Much more convenient than using sprays, washes, douches, etc.

I suffer from catarrh, catarrhal deafness or are subject to frequent colds, get from any drug store a convenient, pocket size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes and prove for yourself their pleasant, beneficial effect.

The small-size package, containing 20 cigarettes, is sold by druggists at 35 cents.

While Seventeen Other Pupils Go to Positions, Many Enroll For Business Courses at The Southern Business College

Seventeen other pupils of the Southern Shorthand and Business University have just gone to splendid positions with important firms in Atlanta, the greatest city in the South. The big, progressive business houses of which are largely supplied with stenographers, bookkeepers, cashiers and secretaries from the classrooms of the Southern.

The names of these seventeen pupils, and the firms with which they have gone, will be announced in a few days, this number bringing the total number of pupils who have recently accepted positions and whose names have been announced since September 10, to seventy-two.

Atlanta is doing great things and the Southern Business College is going hand in hand with her to aid her in every way possible.

"I am going back to Atlanta, the greatest place on earth in which to live," wrote a young man to Messrs. Briscoe and Arnold several days ago.

Another former patron of the Southern, who has been trying out another section of the country, returned to Atlanta yesterday and said to the managers of the Southern:

"Atlanta is good enough for me." Then, too, Atlanta has the advantages possessed by few other cities. Big money is made in real estate. Beautiful homes on every hand. Business enterprises increasing rapidly. A certain young man made his first investment in Atlanta real estate just thirty days ago, and has already been offered a profit of two thousand dollars on his deal.

Take your Business Course at the Southern Business College, and then you'll be in condition to get into the big business whirl of Atlanta.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS 18 MONTHS ON GANG

Rich Wheeler, negro, who lives on Porter place, was given a straight sentence of 18 months on the chain-gang by Judge Jesse M. Wood Monday in the criminal court when he was found guilty on charges of operating an automobile while under the influence of whisky, and speeding.

He was given six months on the speeding charge and a 12 months' sentence on the other charge.

Wheeler was arrested by County Policemen Oliver Webb and Carroll after it is alleged, he crashed into an automobile and knocked down two youths riding bicycles at Dead Man's curve, on Peachtree road.

Easton Is Given Ovation By Big Atlanta Audience

Florence Easton, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera company, held a thousand music-loving Atlantans completely spellbound for two hours Tuesday night at the Auditorium-Armory when she appeared in her first Atlanta recital. Many Easton grand opera enthusiasts who remember the season of a year ago, when she stepped into the breach caused by Rosa Ponselle's illness, were in attendance, and their plaudits mingled with those hearing her for the first time. She was given a real ovation by the audience at the close of the program, and was forced to respond to several encores.

Conserving her voice through an admirably selected program which allowed her to fully demonstrate her powers, Miss Easton rose to a highly dramatic conclusion to the set program by her rendition of the aria, "Plus Grand Dans Son Obscurité," from the "Queen of Sheba," by Gounod, a feat for which the audience was duly grateful. Particularly captivating was her "Zueignung," by R. Strauss. Miss Easton giving this dramatic song of thanks a touch that made it especially appreciated. The depth, genuineness and simplicity of harmonic progression given "Zueignung," warmed the chilliest heart and revealed her as truly worthy of the rank she holds among America's greatest singers.

Miss Easton displayed to the fullest advantage her great way of making climaxes in power and softness, her full, round, healthy voice resembling nothing so much as ripe fruit of wonderful color, containing tenderness, pathos, sympathy and the gamut of emotions. Even the softest of tones could be heard throughout the entire auditorium, and the glare of the direct lighting electric, together with the bareness of the auditorium's walls were forgotten as Atlantans sat in rapt attention under the spell of the mistress of song.

Miss Easton's "Floods of Spring," by Rachmaninoff, was of especial interest to Atlanta's music lovers because of the composer's frequent visits to this city in concert, and here Mary Frances Wood, at the piano, proved that the accompaniment is half of Rachmaninoff's work.

Through her solo piano work, and in her accompaniments, Miss Wood shone as a pianist par excellence. Her technique was flawless, and she brought out the melody in a manner that made the piano fairly sing of itself.

The recital was presented by the Fine Arts Club of Atlanta.

JUDGE DECLARES COLE NOT INSANE

Wilkesboro, N. C., October 13.—Judge T. B. Finley this afternoon declared W. B. Cole, acquitted last week of the slaying of W. W. Ormond, was in a sane mental condition at present and declined to commit him to the state asylum for the criminal insane.

The decision was reached after more than two score affidavits had been filed by Rockingham citizens supporting Cole's assertion that he is in a normal mental state at present.

Hundreds Pay Final Tribute To James B. Duke

Durham, N. C., October 13.—(AP)—Hundreds of people from all walks of life gathered together here this morning to pay final tribute to James B. Duke, philanthropist and financier, who died Saturday night in New York from bacterial pneumonia following a nervous breakdown. The funeral was held in Memorial Methodist church, with Dr. Edmund D. Soper, head of the department of religious education of Duke university officiating. Tonight his body lies in the Duke mausoleum in Maplewood cemetery, erected by his father, Washington Duke, to house the bodies of his family.

The body arrived in the city this morning on a special train from New York. It was met by a local delegation and escorted to Duke university, where it lay in state from 8:15 until 9:45 o'clock to permit the public to visit the body. Accompanying the body of Mr. Duke was a large host of friends.

The funeral was very simple with no eulogy being spoken for the deceased. The ritual for the burial of the dead was used. A quartet sang several of Mr. Duke's favorite hymns during the service at the church and at the cemetery.

The students of Duke university marched in a body to the church and along the route to be taken by the funeral procession. They stood at attention as the funeral cortege of more than 50 automobiles passed.

The service at the cemetery was brief. With the singing of a hymn by the quartet and the completion of the ritual for the burial of the dead, the funeral was over.

DR. J. W. PALMER CHOSEN TO HEAD MEDICAL BOARD

Dr. J. W. Palmer, of Alley, was re-elected president of the state board of medical examiners Tuesday at the October session of the board at the Piedmont hotel. Dr. C. M. Paine, of Atlanta, was elected vice president to succeed Dr. A. F. White, of Florida. Dr. C. T. Nolan, of Marietta, was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

Dr. Nolan announced to the board that the superior court of Carroll county has upheld the state board's revocation of license of W. Hancock Lewis, of Carrollton, whose license to practice medicine was revoked on a charge of moral turpitude following his conviction on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act.

Applicants for state medical licenses were examined Tuesday by the board. Members of the board in attendance were: Dr. J. W. Palmer, Dr. Paine, Dr. Nolan, Dr. M. F. Carson, of Griffin; Dr. N. Peterson, of Tifton; Dr. H. F. McDuffie, of Atlanta; Dr. O. B. Walker, of Rowlesburg; Dr. J. O. Elrod, of Forsyth, and Dr. John M. Anderson, of Barnesville.

North Carolina Slayer Planning Insanity Defense

Hendersonville, N. C., October 13.—(AP)—Testimony to the effect that former Mayor Samuel Y. Bryson fired the first shot in a pistol duel with Bonnie L. Brooks, which resulted in Bryson's death last August 6, was introduced by the defense as the trial of Brooks on a murder charge was resumed today.

Through cross-examination of state witnesses, attorneys for Brooks sought to establish the fact that the defendant was in a mentally deranged condition during and immediately after the shooting.

Shooting Described. Details of the pistol duel were recounted this morning by H. B. Gentry, proprietor of a filling station here, and Patrolman C. E. Edey. Gentry said he witnessed the slaying of Bryson, who was shot down by Brooks near the filling station. Patrolman Edey testified that Bryson was at Gentry's filling station when Brooks drove up in his automobile and began firing at Bryson, who jumped behind a pump and returned the fire. Edey said he ran toward the men, calling at them to cease shooting. Bryson, he said, then surrendered his pistol to him and started toward Brooks. The latter, according to the patrolman, continued to fire on Bryson, who fell to the roadway mortally wounded.

Murray Brooks, 13-year-old son of the defendant, who had been jointly indicted with his father for the killing but whose case was not pressed by the solicitor, was called to the stand for the defense. The boy testified that he and his father had gone for a ride and had arrived opposite the filling station when he saw Bryson standing near the oil pump and pulling a pistol from his pocket. He said he saw his father shoot at Bryson, who fell to the ground. "I asked you," the boy said, "and he motioned to Bryson."

Gave Pistol to Son. According to the witness, Brooks then stopped the car and the pistol shot him. He said his father gave him a pistol and told him to see that no one shot him (Brooks) in the back, and that as the patrolman seized Brooks in an effort to stop the duel, the father shouted to the son to "put it into him." "I asked you," the boy said, "and he motioned to Bryson."

Murray said he fired his pistol prematurely and the bullet went into the ground.

On cross-examination, the boy insisted that Bryson had fired the first shot before his father was out of the car.

Mrs. C. E. Brooks, at whose home the defendant and his family had lived, was the last witness today. She testified that Brooks had come home unexpectedly one night and found Bryson there with Mrs. Brooks. She said Brooks' wife had attempted to reconcile her husband without success and that the couple became estranged.

Other witnesses for the defense testified that Brooks had been exhibiting signs of mental aberration prior to the shooting. Mrs. Bryson, widow of the slain man, was called to the stand by the state in establishing the fact that the former mayor was shot to death. She was not cross-examined.

The defense has a large list of witnesses and indications were the trial will last several days.

THREE CHARGES PLACED AGAINST ALLEGED SWINDLER

Charles D. Lound, alleged "confidence schemer," confined in the Fulton county jail since his arrest Wednesday, October 7, by Bert Donahon, special investigator for Solicitor General John A. Boykin, was indicted Tuesday by a Fulton county grand jury on three felony counts.

The counts charge Lound with not having obtained a license to sell real estate in accordance with the provisions of the Georgia securities law.

Lound is alleged to have promised to stake claims of 160 acres of fertile land in Honduras for the price of $27.50 each, acting as an agent for the government of Honduras.

Lound was indicted Friday by a Fulton county grand jury on three misdemeanor counts charging him with perjury after he had been entrusted with $27.50 each from Thomas Hickey, J. Robert Cole, Jr., and B. A. Pierce, for the purpose of staking claims to Honduras land.

BOYKIN AUTHORIZED TO GET INVESTIGATOR

Solicitor General John A. Boykin was authorized Tuesday to appoint one additional investigator to assist in investigation of cases for prosecution in the office of the solicitor general at a special meeting of the Fulton county commission.

With authorization of the additional investigator, there are now two offices to be filled. The recent death of Plennie Minor, veteran investigator, left one vacancy.

Solicitor Boykin appeared before the commission and entered pleas for two additional investigators and equalization of salaries in the office of the solicitor general with salaries of other court officials.

More than 3,000 cases were tried by the solicitor general and his assistants last year," Mr. Boykin asserted. "The greatest per cent of these cases were felony cases and much time was spent in working up cases and each year the number has increased." A total of 78 murder cases were tried last year, Mr. Boykin asserted.

In asking for an increase in salaries of officials in his office the solicitor pointed out that present salaries were considerably lower than other court house officials receive and his plea was based on equalization, he said.

Paul Etheridge, of the commission, stated that while he did not believe in raising salaries of court officials he firmly believed in equalization. "I am in favor of a trend downward when salaries of the county are to be fixed for the ensuing year," he declared. No formal action on Solicitor Boykin's plea was taken, but it was decided to hold another special meeting during the month at which time action would be decided. The consensus of opinion was that salaries of the officials of the solicitor's office would be equalized with other court positions.

PRESBYTERIANS ELECT FICKLEN MODERATOR

Columbus, Ga., October 13.—(AP)—Rev. J. B. Ficklen, D. D., of Decatur, executive secretary of the synod of Georgia, which convened for the annual three-day session this morning in the local First Presbyterian church, was elected moderator to succeed Rev. Julian S. Sibley, of Cartersville.

Rev. A. L. Patterson, D. D., of Savannah, was re-elected stated clerk and treasurer for a term of three years. Rev. W. B. Clemmons, Crayfordville, was elected permanent clerk for the same term of office.

Approximately 150 delegates are attending the sessions of synod, which is composed of seven presbyteries—Atlanta, Athens, Augusta, Cherokee, Macon, Savannah and southwest Georgia.

The retiring moderator delivered the sermon that opened the initial session of synod.

Committees on bills and overtures, judicial business, theological seminary, finance, excuses and leave of absence, presbyterial records, and minutes of assembly were appointed.

Tonight Rev. L. G. Henderson, D. D., of Albany, gave a full report of work being done in the synod.

Dr. Ficklen, the new moderator, gave an illustrated lecture touching on the work of the synod, showing 16 churches recently added.

COLONEL RYTHUR IS TRANSFERRED TO WESTERN POST

Colonel Dwight W. Rythur, commanding the 22d infantry at Fort McPherson, has been detailed for duty with the organized reserves of the seventh corps area. He has been assigned to duty as chief of staff, 89th division, with headquarters at Omaha, Nebraska.

Colonel Rythur has been in command of the 22d infantry since October, 1923, and under the war department command policy he was due for relief at the expiration of two years.

He will be succeeded in command of the 22d infantry by Colonel George F. Baltzell, who is now taking refresher course at the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga.

ONE CITY SCHOOL HAS PERFECT TEETH

Pupils of the Tenth Street school hold a record of 100 per cent for perfect teeth, it was disclosed Tuesday by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools. The children presented certificates from dentists showing that every child in the school has teeth in perfect condition. In accordance with a rule he has established Superintendent Sutton granted the Tenth Street school a full holiday Tuesday.

BULLDOGS PREPARING FOR BATTLE WITH FURMAN

Georgia In Good Shape After Yale Game; Furman Out To Avenge Defeats

BY MARCUS BRYANT.

Athens, Ga., October 13.—(Special.)—The Georgia Bulldogs today began preparation for the game with Furman's Purple Hurricane in Augusta next Saturday.

No serious injuries resulted from the game against Yale and the squad is in good condition, with the exception of several minor mishaps.

The coaches are taking the Furman game as no easy affair and have meted out a hard week of practice. Last Saturday Furman defeated Citadel 7 to 0, and boasts the strongest team in several years.

Last year, in Augusta's first Georgia-Furman classic, the Bulldogs won, 23 to 0. The first half was even, Stephen, and a brilliant offensive in the final half gave the Red and Black victory.

Although defeated, the Bulldogs' showing against Yale was good, according to several local followers who made the trip, a noted improvement being shown over the Virginia game. It was in the final half when the Bulldogs hit their stride and showed form.

Should "Buster" Kilpatrick and Roy Estes not round into shape for the Furman game is causing no little amount of worry. Both were unable to make the Yale trip, and it is hoped that they will be fit for the clash with the Hurricane.

FURMAN SEES

CHANCE TO WIN.

Greenville, S. C., October 13.—

(Special.)—There is every reason to believe the game between the University of Georgia and Furman university Saturday afternoon in Augusta, heralded as the Savannah River classic, will be one of the hardest fought gridiron contests to be played in the southeast this season. The Purple Hurricane with two good, strong elevens, is eager for the struggle with the Bulldogs when it hopes to get revenge for the defeats Georgia administered last year and in fact, 1922 and 1923 as well.

The supporters of Furman contend that their team has a much better chance to win than they have ever had before. This season they will journey to Augusta with an unbroken record of victories including the game played October 3 with the powerful Washington and Lee eleven, rated by some sport writers as the second best team in the southern conference. There is a possibility the Purple Hurricane will go through their schedule this season without a defeat, despite the fact it has been a hard schedule. As the Baptists are taking the games as they come to them on the schedule and, without "pointing" for any special contest, it seems reasonable they will make a mighty effort to overcome their strong rivals in Augusta.

Among the out-of-state games yet to be played Furman has the Davidson and Wake Forest contests ahead of them and Georgia and Mercer loom up as barriers to their aspirations for a complete set of victories this year. But they are worrying not at all about any of them with the exception of Georgia because that is the next game they must play. Furman has adopted the policy of taking their games as they come on the schedule without pointing for any particular battle. In other words, the Hurricane is actually "pointing" for every game on their schedule, and slighting no one.

Captain Tilghman, stellar end man for the Hurricane, promises the fans who attend the Savannah River classic in Augusta Saturday they will not be disappointed if they go there expecting to see Furman give her best in an attempt to redeem laurels lost in past years.

BUCS MAY PAY $100,000 FOR TWO PLAYERS

Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, October 12.—(Special.)—The Pittsburgh Pirates were understood today to have closed a deal with San Francisco of the Pacific Coast league for the purchase of Hank Rhyne, star shortstop and Paul Waner, outfielder, at a reported price of $100,000 and three players to be delivered later.

Manager McKeehan admitted the deal was pending but would not confirm it definitely, saying he had not yet had a final conference with Barney Dreyfus, club president. Rhyne and Waner have been two of the most eagerly sought minor league stars this season. At one time it was reported the New York Yankees had put through negotiations for them.

The money is the promise of William Wrigley, chief owner of the Cubs. "I'll shoot a million to put the Cubs over the top in 1926," he said. The signing of McCarthy after terms had been agreed upon at a conference here while the Louisville pilot is en route to California with his team for a post-season series with the San Francisco Pacific Coast league club.

Gibson Will Stay. He will replace George Gibson, who took the berth last summer with the understanding that a new manager would be named for 1926 and who will be retained as coach or in some other capacity if he wishes to remain. McCarthy had been mentioned in connection with the managership ever since Bill Killefer was relieved of the helm early in the season. At that time the Louisville manager was in a hot pennant fight and his release could not be obtained.

His retention by the Cubs is only part of a rehabilitation plan, according to Wrigley.

Cubs Buy Four Leading Hitters of National League

Chicago, October 13.—(Special.)—A million dollars and a new manager with a pennant scalp dangling at his belt will essay the revamping of the Chicago Cubs, tail-enders in the National league.

The new manager is Joe McCarthy, who guided the Louisville Colonels to the American association pennant this year. He has signed a contract for two years at a reported salary of $20,000 a year.

The money is the promise of William Wrigley, chief owner of the Cubs. "I'll shoot a million to put the Cubs over the top in 1926," he said. The signing of McCarthy after terms had been agreed upon at a conference here while the Louisville pilot is en route to California with his team for a post-season series with the San Francisco Pacific Coast league club.

Gibson Will Stay. He will replace George Gibson, who took the berth last summer with the understanding that a new manager would be named for 1926 and who will be retained as coach or in some other capacity if he wishes to remain. McCarthy had been mentioned in connection with the managership ever since Bill Killefer was relieved of the helm early in the season. At that time the Louisville manager was in a hot pennant fight and his release could not be obtained.

His retention by the Cubs is only part of a rehabilitation plan, according to Wrigley. "If ability can put us over in 1926 we'll have that ability. What we needed this year was hitters. We led the league in fielding. Well, we've bought four of the leading hitters of the National league. No. 1 can't announce their names. When the team makes its appearance next spring, it will speak for itself."

Six Years With Colonels. McCarthy will assume his duties after his return from the coast. He will bring to the team an experience of six years as manager of the Colonels and many years as a player.

He went to Louisville ten years ago as a second baseman and took the reins in 1919, guiding the Colonels to the flag in 1921 and 1925. He entered baseball in Wilkesbarre, Pa., where he was obtained by the Buffalo Internationals and he later played with Brooklyn in the Federal league.

Gibson will remain in charge of the Cubs until the completion of the city series with the White Sox.

The Louisville club and McCarthy leave tonight for Des Moines for two games and will play two games at Kansas City before engaging San Francisco in a post-season series.

The Eighteen Best Plays Selected for Use by High School and College Teams

NO. 11. CROSS BUCK.

The defensive tackle is drawn wide by the sideswipe threat and the fake by the tailback to take the ball. The ball, apparently passed to the tailback, is intercepted by the back on the left, who smashes outside of guard behind an interfering guard. The play has proved exceptionally effective.

slice, dive or lunge at the man with the ball as soon as he is sure he can reach him. Must not put hands on opponent's back. This permits the opponent to reach line man's body or legs. Must avoid rising up and "giving" his opponent his legs or stomach, for they will force him to bend his back, tip him over backwards or run him back. Use Both Hands. Must keep opponents away from his legs by shooting his hands like lightning either on the head of his opponent, against the upper chest, the shoulders or against the side of his neck. He should not swing his arms back and forth for that loses time. He should prefer to use both arms as a boxer uses his left. Should try to use both hands on one spot of his opponent's anatomy.

Crimson Tide Is Facing Tougher Foes of Schedule

BY BOB MATHERNE.

University, Ala., October 13.—(Special.)—It is pretty tough going for Alabama from now on, with Union, Birmingham-Southern and Louisiana State university out of the Tidemen way and Sewanee and Georgia Tech facing them in the next two weeks.

So far Alabama has won three games, scored 145 points, been scored upon once and met little opposition. And this week finds them pitted against Sewanee and the next week will see them cavorting around in Atlanta. It's tough goings for the Crimson.

No one got hurt seriously at Mike Donahue's place in Louisiana this past week and all the squad were hard at work Monday getting the kinks out of their limbs from the jaunt down there. As for the game, the Crimson were either pretty good Saturday or the Louisianians were over-rated, but the score was just about three times what everybody expected it to be. That suited just the same.

Alabama face its first real game of this season this week in the Sewanee tussle. The Mountaineers can be depended on to fight Alabama like they fight Vanderbilt, and they have an eleven this year which seems to be the best they have ever had, from all reports reaching here. This makes it certain that the Crimson will have to use their all against Sewanee if they want to eke out a victory.

As to this Tech affair two weeks off, Tech's victory against Penn State made Alabamians realize all the more how sweet it would be for the Tidemen to wallop Alabama, sound and proper this year. And such thoughts are not joyful ones at this time. But Tech is two weeks off and Sewanee is being played this week-end.

Typical Wade Machine. A number of Crimson supporters made the Louisiana trip via the blinds, cut-down Fords and regular automobiles. Even a few are said to have rode down there in regal style. It is expected that the entire student body will be in Birmingham this coming Saturday and fully 1,000 will journey to Atlanta for the Tech team.

The Crimson machine of this year is typical of Wallace Wade, head coach. It is well versed in the fundamentals of the game, has blocking down to a fine art and hits 'em hard at all times. It has a versatile attack, with fleet running backs, good punters, good plungers and expert fencers of the oval. It will be heavy from tackle to tackle, with rather small ends, and backs who range around the 170-pound mark. The team, of course, is not as good as the one that finished the 1924 season—no team that lost Probst, Langhorne, Whittaker, Oliver, Compson, McIntock and several reserves could be—but just how good it is as an eleven will be determined in the next two games of the Tide.

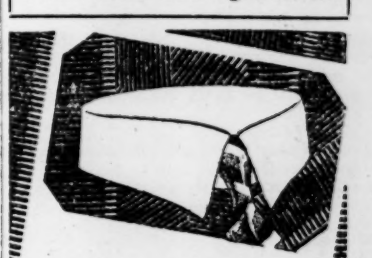

Of course, everybody here expects the Capstone eleven to win. That's only natural. But no one realizes any more than the students do that Sewanee and Georgia Tech are enough to worry any eleven, no matter how good they are.

MARIST PLAYS DARLINGTON HI

With memory of their defeat at the hands of Darlington school last fall still rankling in their minds, the Blue Cadets of Marist college will step out Friday afternoon in an attempt to gain revenge for their defeat.

The general idea prevailing in prep circles is that the Blue Cadets will make good in their effort, for they have shown considerable class in winning their two opening games of the season.

The Marist team opened its season against the Sixth district Aggies, winning easily and pulling through the game minus any serious injuries. Last week they swept over the strong Cartersville team, running up a large score.

Although the weather has interfered with practice this week Coach Joe Bean has put his men through some good workouts and will continue practice right on through Thursday afternoon. A scrimmage will probably be held this afternoon and will be the last in preparation for the game.

KREMER HOLDS SENATORS AS PIRATES EVEN SERIES

Big Issue Will Close Today; Goslin Connects For Sixth Series Homer

would have been a circuit clout by a comfortable margin.

This was among the fortunes or misfortunes of war, however. Clyde "Barthart" of the Pirates himself, missing a homer by almost as close a margin after Moore's big blow in the fifth and the Senators tonight are shaping their plans around the tall figure of the big Kansas farmer, Walter Johnson, for the final stand in defense of their championship.

Johnson, hero of two victories so far, will go back tomorrow with only two days of rest and still a bit handicapped by a "charley horse" in his right leg. Washington hopes, as they were in the final analysis last year and as they have been all through this year's struggle, will be pinned on Old Barney, the lion-hearted and iron-armored veteran of 10 years of campaigning, as he seeks laurels that not only would give the title to Washington once more but put Johnson himself in a niche occupied heretofore only by Christy Mathewson, Walter Cooles, Babe Adams and Stanley Coveleskie.

Sensors Are Set.
With Johnson to rely upon and a southpaw ace still in the hole—Dutch Beuther, Washington has a powerful hand for the final showdown, where as the Pirates in the flush of victory must turn to solve a precarious pitching situation.

Lee Meadows, whose shoulder, gone had since the first game, underwent a slight operation last night, is out of the series altogether, so that Manager McKechnie must choose tomorrow between the "curves" of "Lughanville Johnny" Morrison, thus far acting only in a relief role, and Rube Oldham, a portside untested in the world series.

Today, however, there were no pitching worries for McKechnie after Kremer, product of the Pacific Coast league, had got the first few kinks out of his arm. The cool, young right-hander was found for a home run by Goslin, the first inning—the Goose's third circuit clout of this series and his sixth in two years—while Peckinpaugh's double on a hit and run play scored Bluge in the second, but after that the Senators did no damage.

Kremer Was Right.
Six hits altogether were the most that Washington could collect and in the last seven innings they were held to three. Right down to the finish, however, it was Kremer who stood out on the defense and at bat, while Kremer held the pitching peak with rate skill. Moore got to base on a single in the sixth inning, but Kremer's sixth out of the series—and scored two runs besides roaming his infield pool in capable fashion. Eddie was rampant in all his glory for the first time in the series and he made the most of his opportunities to lift the Pirates' emerald back to the high places.

PITTSBURG ACTUALLY LOOKS ON PIRATES AS HEROES

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Pittsburg, October 13.—This is a hard-boiled town. Pittsburg believes that Goliath agreed to take one on the chin, that Lady Godiva wore overall tights and that the headless horseman of Sleepy Hollow was just some left-handed pitcher jumping a contract with the Elmira club of the New York State league.

You can't tell Pittsburg anything. You couldn't, that is, until the Pirates finally squared the world series Tuesday afternoon by winning from the Senators, 3 and 2. As the last putout of the game vanquished the Senators and brought the series score to three games apiece, Pittsburg leaped out of the stands and bleachers and swept over the ball field, gibbering, yowling, thrashing the murky air with loony gestures. This would be a good time to promote fundamentalism in Pittsburg. Since the Pirates came along to square the series after being two games behind, the home town of Harry Thaw and Harry Greb is willing to admit that anything is possible.

Pittsburg forgot that the Pirates were just a bunch of guys from around town and made heroes of them all. The fans flourished over the railings and surged down the runway toward the dressing room trying to touch the flannel of their uniforms, personally.

In Washington the Senators are regarded as a set of nice young athletes and the municipal varsity. In Pittsburg, up to this time, the Pirates have always been regarded as members of the gang who happened to be playing ball for a living.

Different Attitude.
Whereas there is a certain polite forbearance in Washington regarding past failures of the individual Senators, Pittsburg has always been willing to yell at some member of the Pirates who seemed to be growing fond of himself and remind him of the time he was waived out of the Kitty league.

Ray Kremer, a pitcher who throws with his right hand, is the lead-off hero among a squad of super-humans now.

Kremer was the one who deferred the victory after Eddie Moore, the second baseman, had created it with a home run over the wall in the fifth inning. He used the most formidable rush of hitters that the Senators could send against him and the better the crisis the less he seemed to care.

In the eighth inning Bucky Harris, commander of the nice Washington varsity, rushed out every able hitter toward the dressing room trying to touch the flannel of their uniforms, personally.

Summary: Two-base hits, Peckinpaugh, Barnhart, J. Harris; home runs, Goslin, Moore; stolen bases, Traynor, McNeely; sacrifices, Carey (2); Cuyler; double plays, Judge (unassisted); left on bases, Washington 4, Pittsburg 8; bases on balls, off Kremer 1 (Goslin); Ferguson 2 (Moore, Barnhart); Balko 1 (Wright); struck out, by Kremer (J. Harris, Judge, Ferguson); Ferguson 6 (McInnis, Kremer, 3 in 3); Wright; hits, off Kremer, 6 in 3; off Ferguson, 7 in 3; off Balko, none in 3; winning pitcher, Kremer; losing pitcher, Ferguson; Umpires, Owens (A. L.), plate; McCormick (N. L.), first; Moriarty (A. L.), second; Hickey (N. L.), third. Time of game, 1:57.

Max Carey followed with a bounding r.p. toward second which Peckinpaugh grabbed, only to fail to reach second base in time to force Moore. Bluge snuffed out Cuyler and Barnhart in succession on a brace of pretty stops and throws, but in the course of these plays the base runners worked their way around and Moore sprinted over the plate with the first run. Carey followed him a moment later when Pie Traynor slashed his second straight hit to right down to the finish. Eddie was rampant in all his glory for the first time in the series and he made the most of his opportunities to lift the Pirates' emerald back to the high places.

Moore Scores First.

within call of his voice and even subtracted himself from the lineup in the fight for the two runs that would have won the game and the world series. Hank Severed, an elderly catcher who had been subbing under the bat for the battle-worn Muddy Ruel, had spanked out a smart single and Harris, eagerly alert for the break of the game, rushed in Earl McNeely, his sprinting outfielder, to run for him. One-tenth of a minute later, bases might make the difference between a putout and a steal, victory and the other thing.

Bucky Uses Strategy.
Nemo Liebold, an old campaigner who can stand his ground, was yanked from his shadowy corner of the Washington dugout and sent in to hit for Alex Ferguson, the Senators' pitcher.

Smith, waggled a bit-and-run signal to Liebold and McNeely and Nemo, obedient to orders, made a lunge with his bat at a ball he couldn't have touched with a fishpole. Earl Smith, catching for the Pirates, took the pitch with some inconvenience and made a bad throw to second, so McNeely pulled up to the plate and base even though the hit and run had failed.

The tying run was on base and there was no man out. Liebold came under a twisting curve and raised the ball in a harmless loop back of second base where Moore caught him out.

Kremer Was Firm.
Now Sam Rice came up to bat and behind him, his clubmate, Bucky Harris. Kremer noticed the menacing presence of Bucky Harris. The head of the batting order was coming up.

But they weren't hitting Kremer in this present Rice went out on a gentle smack to Stuff McInnis, the Pirates' first baseman, and McNeely got no further than third. Now Harris ordered himself out of the line and detailed Bobby Vench, another elderly caddy, to go in and hit for him.

Kremer naturally realized that Vench would be a hard nut to crack. A high batting average and a dangerous reputation. One smack might wreck him.

But they were all mere batters to Kremer and he held Vench to a harmless grounder for the third out.

The Senators aimed one more punch in the ninth, when Joe Harris, the author of three home runs in this series, got his weight behind a fast ball and bent it back to the center-field wall. He pulled up at second base, and again Kremer was defending his game with one man out and the tying run half-way around.

J. Harris' Mug Snuffed.
But Joe Judge, the next hitter, hoisted a fly to the shortstop and Oswald Bluge topped his swing, sending a boulder toward third for the final out of the sixth game.

The people of Pittsburg are very outspoken, always, but they were especially candid to the Senators and the umpires as this ball game was fought out. Aleck Ferguson was pitching a fairly good game for the Senators, but local sportsmen didn't hesitate to remind him that there are 90 some trains out of Pittsburg every day, any one of which would carry him back to the bushes.

Mr. Red Mason, the manager of Harry Greb, however, officiated as a sort of cheer leader for the local clientele all afternoon, bawling his witticisms through a megaphone four feet long.

"Oh, you dirty bum!" said Mr. Mason through his horn, addressing himself to George Moriarty, the American league umpire. "Oh, you dirty, rotten b.m."

There was great vigor in all of his remarks.

But he reached the high note of his recitation in jesting at a Senator's wounds. Joe Harris was up.

"Oh, looka the mug on that guy!" Mr. Mason exclaimed through his megaphone. "That guy's got everything but a tin ear—that guy has."

Mr. Mason was quite right. That guy's mug certainly has been banged up. It got that way about seven years ago when he was doing some work for the government for $30 a month in France.

Pirates Look Different. They Are Game. Billy Dugan's Chance.

WELL, look at the Pirates today and consider them, for they must be considered to be sitting rather pretty now after having been two down to Washington in the struggle for the baseball championship of the world. They have pitchers of ability to throw at the American league champions, while the latter have Walter Johnson, and he has worked very hard in the two wonderful games he has pitched.

There is no question but that the gamefulness of the National league has placed them in the better position. They have their heads up, have begun to hit, and are getting pitching.

THE situation is much the same as it was in 1909 when Babe Adams won immortal fame by winning three games from the Detroit Tigers after the case of the Pirates seemed hopeless. Gamefulness pulled the Pittsburghers through in that year, and if they win this year it will be due to gamefulness as much as to anything else.

You can say that about a baseball club which a year ago was accused of being yellow and quiting when they visited New York to play the Giants the series which determined where the championship of the National league for 1924 should go.

BILLY DUGAN, the Rome heavyweight who is being steered through the pugilistic ranks under the tutelage of Billy Tolt, may get a chance to bid for greater fame within a few days. Sports officers at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, are trying to match Dugan with Bob Martin, who won the heavyweight championship of the A. E. F., for a bout at Fort Bragg. Martin has won considerable fame in the prize ring, but it can be said quite frankly that he has gone back some. He should, however, be a good match for Dugan.

New York, October 13.—(AP)—Denial that Gloria Faure, actress, accompanied Alberto J. Pani to New York on his private car, was made today by A. H. Cervantes, his secretary. He said the party consisted only of Senor Pani and official staff.

Secretary Pani arrived here September 29 to discuss debts and other matters with bankers. He is still in the city.

CANDLER PRAISES
ATLANTA'S SPIRIT
IN BIG FUND DRIVE

Atlanta's act in oversubscribing the $250,000 advertising fund was itself worth every dollar contributed, according to William Candler, chairman of the campaign committee, in a talk Tuesday before the Atlanta Building Owners and Managers' association at a luncheon at the Piedmont hotel.

E. M. Horine, president of the association, presided, and after praising the work done for Atlanta by the Candler family presented E. S. Barker, secretary of the chamber of commerce, who in turn presented Mr. Candler.

In a brief speech Mr. Candler told of the benefit the city will derive from the advertising campaign.

"It is indeed hard to estimate just the amount of good that will be derived by Atlanta and Georgia from the advertising campaign—it will be big and far-reaching," he said.

Klan Figuring
In Murder Trial
Of Stephenson

Noblesville, Ind., October 13.—The Ku Klux Klan issue has reached major proportions in the murder trial of D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of that powerful organization in Indiana.

As the close questioning of prospective jurors goes forward in the little court room here it becomes evident that Stephenson's former evidence will play an important part in the fight to acquit or convict him of responsibility in the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer, of Indianapolis.

Although Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck are on trial with Stephenson, all that has occurred in the courtroom thus far indicates that nearly all the testimony will concern the former Klan leader.

Representing the Oberholtzer family and assisting the prosecution is a former state supreme court judge, Charles E. Cox. Judge Cox represents that faction in the Klan which it is said, believes that Stephenson should be punished "for the good of the order."

But Stephenson is not without influence in his own organization. He still holds a faction large enough to create a serious rift in the Klan ranks should he decide to bring the issue into his defense.

The jurors that had been accepted tentatively up to Tuesday night were those who denied allegiance with any secret society and promised they would not hesitate to impose the death penalty should the evidence convince them the defendants are guilty.

TELEGRAPH SERVICE

For Sale by All First Class Drug Stores—Price $1.00

One is the building up of your BONE, BLOOD, NERVE and TISSUE, the other is the carrying off of the waste matter and impurities.

For every ounce of food you eat or drink, there is almost an ounce of waste matter that should be eliminated by the way of your KIDNEYS and BOWELS.

If your LIVER and KIDNEYS fail to do their duty, portions of this waste matter remain in your stomach and intestines where they ferment, sour and decay, causing INDIGESTION, SORE STOMACH, KIDNEY TROUBLE, etc. These impurities are also taken up by your blood and carried to all parts of your system, causing a general run-down condition and IMPURE BLOOD.

NUX-HERBS & IRON acts directly on your Liver, Kidneys and Bowels.

It starts to work from the very first dose, does the work surely, safely and quickly. It will work the cold, the flu, the malaria and impurities from your system in a surprising manner, without grip or pain, and build you up all over.

NUX-HERBS & IRON is especially recommended for—

SHIBBOTHUS KIDNEY & BLADDER TROUBLES IMPURE BLOOD
PAIN IN THE BACK AND HIPS
CONSTIPATION FREQUENT URINATION
HEADACHE WEAK BLADDER
RHEUMATISM NERVOUS EXHAUSTION
LOSS OF APPETITE

If you are weak and nervous, if you have that tired, worn out, and run down feeling, you should start taking NUX-HERBS & IRON today. The very first few doses will give you a vim, vigor and vitality such as you have not known in years. It is not a temporary stimulant but is a lasting tonic and system builder.

You may eat or drink anything you wish while taking it. It is good for both men and women. If you are tired of taking medicine and paying doctor bills, get a bottle today. It doesn't prove to be worth ten times the price you paid for it, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded at once, without a question. What more could we offer?

WARNING—Be sure you get the genuine SPICER'S NUX-HERBS & IRON. Look for the signature on the label.

THE SOUTHERN SERVES THE SOUTH

All share the benefits of this gain in operating efficiency

We are now carrying 130% more freight than we did twenty years ago, but with an increase of only 10% in the mileage run by our freight locomotives.

This increased efficiency has been made possible by the large investment of capital in more powerful locomotives, larger freight cars, greater track and terminal facilities, and the reduction of curves and grades.

The results have been—

- Better transportation service for the South;
- Higher wages for our employees;
- Freight rates lower in proportion to the general level of prices than they were before the war;
- Earning power that will attract new capital for expansion.

All share the benefits of this gain in operating efficiency.

A Health Secret
Ages Old

which is bringing thousands new vigor and vitality

Centuries before any scientist could explain why certain springs were known to have unusual health value. People by the thousands congregated at those centers to benefit by these secret properties.

Now we know that those springs are healthful because they are radio-active. Hot Springs, Arkansas, is a famous example.

And the same principles have been developed farther. For the Radium Ore Revigator is, in truth, a health spring in the home. It provides the same radio-active water that you find in world-famous health centers.

Thousands of people now attest the benefits of radio-active water. It means better health, higher efficiency and greater enjoyment of life.

But test it for yourself. We ask it as a favor. Try radio-active water for 10 days FREE.

Bring a gallon container to our shop every day for 10 days. Fill it with radio-active water from the Revigator and drink it at home. Start today.

The Makers of Frigidaire
Welcome the Florists—

THE world's largest manufacturers of electric refrigeration, the Delco-Light Company, extends through its Atlanta Sales Branch, a sincere welcome to the members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. The purpose of your convention is to transmit ideas mutually beneficial to the grower, the retailer, and the consumer. May you, as members of the world's largest horticulturists' association, gain much by your convention contacts.

A Frigidaire Unit has been installed in the Ritz Florist Shop, 549 Peachtree street. You are cordially invited to inspect this installation. Ask questions about its operation and efficiency. Observe how well the blooms retain their freshness and fragrance, under ideal Frigidaire conditions.

Frigidaire automatically maintains a uniform temperature, which is ideal for cut flowers. It never melts. It does away with the inconvenience of daily icing.

Frigidaire is a paying investment, because it reduces operating costs, prevents waste and saves time. Now is the time to investigate Frigidaire. See for yourself.

Frigidaire may be purchased on convenient monthly terms.

Miss Simmons and Mr. Watson Wed At Twilight Ceremony

A beautiful twilight ceremony of Tuesday afternoon was the wedding of Miss Carolyn Flounrny Simmons and Clyde Mortimer Watson, which was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Oliver C. Simmons.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Dr. W. A. Shelton in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends. The reception rooms of the home were artistically decorated with palms, southern smilax and baskets of cut flowers. An aisle of pedestals baskets joined by ribbon streamers marked the passage to the improvised altar which was placed in the spacious living room. Burning tapers on either side cast a soft glow over the lovely scene, and tall baskets of which chrysanthemums were placed before a background of stately palms and ferns.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Rollie Trimble sang "All For You" and "Until." The Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin was played as the processional by Mrs. Ann Rudolf and "Russian Romance" was played softly during the ceremony.

Bridal Party.

Miss Ora Cole, of Rome, was bridesmaid and entered with Benjamin S. Barker, Jr. Her gown was of green chiffon embroidered in rhinestones and crystal beads. She carried an arm bouquet of lavender chrysanthemums and wore a wreath of lavender French flowers about her hair. Mrs. Maurice O'Sullivan as matron of honor entered with James Watson and she wore lavender chiffon fashioned with tight bodice and flared skirt. Her flowers and wreath matched those of the bridesmaid. Miss Edith Simmons, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and entered alone, wearing green and white with very full skirt and tight bodice. Her flowers were also lavender chrysanthemums and were showered with valley lilies. Little Freeman Simmons carried the ring on a small satin pillow.

Two little flower girls wearing green and lavender frocks preceded the bride scattering rose petals in her path. They were Susanne Spencer, niece of the groom, and Virginia Penick, niece of the bride. They carried garden hats of roses showered with valley lilies.

Lovely Bride.

The bride entered with her brother, John Simmons, of West Point, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, J. Barlow Osborn, Jr., of Miami.

The bride was lovely in her wedding robe of heavy duchess satin with a yoke of chiffon and rose petals lace embroidered in pearls and rhinestones. Soft drapery in the front was caught with a panel of the duchess lace and held in place with a point lace medallion which has been in her family for generations. Her veil was held to her lovely blonde hair with a cap of princess lace embroidered with pearls and rhinestones. The train of rare lace was held in place with an old-fashioned pearl brooch, which formerly belonged to the bride's great-grandmother. She carried a bouquet of orchids showered with valley lilies.

Informal Reception.

Following the ceremony, the guests were entertained at an informal reception by Rev. and Mrs. Simmons. They were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Anna Watson, mother of the groom, and Mrs. R. J. Spence, sister of the groom. Mrs. John Simmons and Mrs. Sauls Penick, sisters of the bride, also assisted their mother in entertaining.

After a wedding journey in North Carolina and Tennessee, Mr. and Mrs. Watson will be at home at 6 Rivers road until the completion of their home.

Prominent Families.

Mrs. Watson is the youngest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Oliver C. Simmons. She attended Wesleyan college in Macon, where she was a popular member of the various school activities. Her father, who is a retired Methodist minister, is a member of the Simmons and Leake families of north Georgia. Her mother was Carrie Moore, of Alabama, a member of the Flournoy, Rogers and Moore families of that state.

Mr. Watson is the second son of Mrs. Anna S. Watson and the late James A. Watson, pioneer of Atlanta, who later moved to Lithia Springs. He is a construction engineer, having graduated from Tech in 1917, where he was a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. During the world war he served two years in France as captain of engineers.

Miss Rhodes Given Lovely Bridge-Tea.

Miss Marie Herbert Rhodes, a bride-elect, was honored by Mrs. Charles Sullivan Tuesday afternoon at a bridge-tee at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

She was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. C. T. Bayley and Mrs. D. D. Rice, of Franklin, N. C.

Mrs. Bristol Is Honored at Luncheon.

Mrs. Mark Bristol, who, with Admiral Bristol, is the prominent guest of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little, was honored at the luncheon at which Mrs. Phinix Calhoun entertained at her home on Andrews drive on Tuesday.

Mrs. Calhoun wore a becoming

Lewis-Eubanks Wedding Party Honored at Supper

A delightful affair of Tuesday evening was the buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. George Eubanks, Sr., at their home on Springdale road in honor of Miss Eloise Lewis and Dr. George Eubanks, Jr., following the rehearsal for the wedding at the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

The home was beautifully decorated throughout with a profusion of pink roses placed in artistic arrangement on the tables and consoles. On the dining table from which a delicious buffet supper was served, a large three-tiered wedding cake was used as central decoration. This cake was covered with a trellis work of white from which embossed roses and valley lilies hung in graceful garlands to the top of the cake. Surrounding this lovely centerpiece were French blue glass candlesticks holding tall yellow tapers tied with yellow tulle. Nuts and mints carried out the same charming color scheme.

Mrs. Eubanks was gowned in black lace and was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. William Marion Lewis, Mrs. Alfred Colquitt Howard and Miss Eloise Lewis.

Mrs. Lewis wore electric blue chiffon, embroidered in sequins. Mrs. Howard's gown was green chiffon velvet trimmed with fur and Miss Lewis was lovely in an imported model of cloth of gold.

The members of the bridal party and a few close friends were invited for this enjoyable occasion.

president of the Central of Georgia railway, L. A. Downs, and a large number of officials with 500 clerks from all over the system will be present. Several new features have been added to the dance program, such as a grand prize waltz for a ladies' pearl necklace and a pair of gold cuff buttons, which has been donated by R. H. Mathews, watch inspector of Macon, Ga.

Another feature will be a spot dance for boxes of aristocratic candy, made especially for this dance by F. E. Block and company, who are donating same to the clerks for this occasion. By Madame H. E. Newton, the director of the Ruy Lopez cigars, will furnish the smokers for after-dinner smokers.

Of the various social events of the employees of the Central of Georgia Railway company each year this dinner-dance surpasses all others as to the numbers present and the sociable and happy gatherings of the Central family.

Mrs. Gresham Hostess To Floral Convention.

Centering the interest of the women visitors to the Floral Telegraph Delivery convention here this week, will be the beautiful luncheon to be given at the Druid Hills Golf club at 1 o'clock on Wednesday at which Mrs. R. Irving Gresham will officially represent the Atlanta organization as hostess.

Assisting in greeting the two hundred visitors who form the feminine contingent of the convention will be Mrs. Roland Lyon, wife of the president of the local body, Mrs. Claude Barfield, chairman of transportation, and Mrs. Ralph Dean, chairman of decorations.

Mrs. Walter Sims will be the first speaker at the luncheon to welcome the lady visitors to the city of Atlanta.

Mrs. Newton C. Wing, Atlanta chairman of the Best Homes in America movement, as the next speaker, will describe the cooperation of the Atlanta Florists and Horticultural club, in landscaping the grounds of the better homes during the three years of Atlanta's participation in the national campaign week, during which this city won third, second and first national prizes, consecutively.

A special honor guest at the luncheon Wednesday is Mrs. Charles H. Brown, wife of the president of the national florists association.

During the luncheon there will be a delightful program of vocal music by Mrs. Charles C. Jones, and dances by Mrs. Robert Harbison, of the Potter Spiker dancers, following which the guests will be taken on a sight-seeing tour.

Attractive Display Windows at Rich's.

Two of Rich's display windows are proving of unusual interest to the Atlanta public. Two of the most important items in a woman's wardrobe—hosiery and negligees being displayed in the most unusual manner.

One window of French negligees is startlingly daring and yet truly beautiful. Rich's direct imports of intriguing negligees—shawls, pillows, necklaces and many other accessories are also shown in this window.

The hosiery display—instructive as well as appealing to the truly feminine, shows hosiery in stages from the cocoon to the finished product. Hosiery with gleaming jewels—exquisite hand-embroidery, fit adornment for the trimmest ankle.

Theosophical Lecture For Wednesday.

The subject of the theosophical lecture for Wednesday evening will be a continuation of the subject of last week, "The Peopling of the World or the Coming of the Units of Consciousness Into the Five-Fold Universe." The lecture is free and will be held at 8:15, at room 201, 325 Peachtree street. The public is invited.

Meeting in Interest of Child Welfare.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Georgia Children's Home society will be held at Orme-wood court, the receiving home, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. All who are interested in the dependent children of our state are cordially invited to attend this meeting and learn something of the work that is being done. The members of the board of directors of the society, the Masonic club, and members of the auxiliary, are specially urged to attend. Mrs. A. L. Norris, president, will preside and Robert Harvey, president of the board of directors, will make an address.

Miss Gertrude Comly To Wed Mr. Werner.

Spruce, N. Y., October 13.—Lynn W. Werner, of Atlanta, Ga., will be best man at the marriage of his brother, Ray Cowles Werner, of Daytona, Fla., and Miss Gertrude Comly, daughter of Mrs. George N. Comly, of this city, which will be solemnized on Saturday evening, October 17, here, in St. Mark's Episcopal church. Miss Comly will have her sister, Mrs. Lorraine Comly, as maid of honor, and also will be attended by two little flower girls, Miss Gertrude Henry, daughter of Dr. Lucas S. Henry and Mrs. Henry, and Miss Jane Drummond, of Utica, N. Y. The ceremony will be followed by a small reception at the home of Mrs. Comly on West Genesee street. Miss Comly has been an honor guest at numerous delightful parties, luncheons and entertainments given by her multitude of friends in this city during the past week.

Executive Board To Meet Monday.

Mrs. R. K. Rambo, president of Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, announces an executive board meeting Monday afternoon, October 19, 2:30 o'clock at the Henry Grady hotel. It is important that all newly appointed chairmen and all club presidents be present.

Mrs. Rambo requests that all resolutions be put into the hands of the resolution chairman, Mrs. Marvin Underwood at that time. The first regular meeting of the Atlanta federation will be held on Wednesday, October 21, at 10 a. m., in the ballroom of the Henry Grady hotel.

A subscription luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock for 75 cents per cover. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. E. V. Carter, Dearborn 2204-J. A splendid program has been arranged and all members of federated clubs are expected to attend this meeting with their presidents.

French Alliance To Meet Today.

The regular weekly meeting of L'Alliance Francaise will be held Thursday, October 15, in the pine room of Hotel Ansley with the presentation of the following program, beginning at 3:30 p. m.: Reading of "Historical and Literary Anecdotes," by various authors by Mademoiselle L. Larendon, description of "Le Chateau de Clemenceau," by Mademoiselle H. E. Newton. In the absence of Mrs. J. M. Stanton, acting president, Madame L. Lenoir, secretary, will preside. All lovers of the French language are invited to become members of L'Alliance Francaise.

Scholarship Given Atlanta Federation By Mrs. Spiker

Mrs. R. K. Rambo, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, announces the gift of a scholarship in dancing and dramatic art, tendered the Atlanta federation by Mrs. Potter-Spiker. This scholarship to extend over a period of three years and is valued at $1,000. Mrs. Spiker is well known and much beloved in Atlanta where, for a number of years, she has conducted a class in esthetic dancing and expression. At this time Mrs. Spiker's class numbers over 200. This generous gift to the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs means much in that it bestows honors of unselfish instruction bestowed upon some worthy girl that she may become self-sustaining.

Mrs. Rambo requests the members of the Atlanta federation to endeavor to place a suitable beneficiary in Mrs. Spiker's care. Her requirements are: The girl must be well-bred, have a high school education (or its equivalent), must be not less than 14 nor more than 17; must have stood well in her classes, and to obtain the best results from the training the beneficiary should be in good physical condition and be possessed of a high degree of intelligence. Mrs. Spiker also asks that none apply who are financially able to receive this instruction, the scholarship being only open to a girl who would not otherwise be enabled to take advantage of this opportunity. Applications may be made to Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, 30 West Eleventh street, who is chairman of applied education.

Muse's Fashion Show At Howard Theatre Is Colorful Event

Ravishing gowns, wraps, hats and shoes worn by beautiful models feature the Muse fashion pageant at the Howard theater this week.

The artistic entertainment is presented in four episodes and was successfully staged by Le Roy Prinz and throughout the fashion show, artistic numbers were danced by the Howard girls. A snow scene was reproduced as a background for the handsome fer coats of perfectly-matching gowns, fashioned with flaring skirt length.

A white evening gown richly embroidered in crystals, had a striking finish to the skirt in the deep row of pointed jet fringe, and the geranium red velvet bow and streamers on the left side was worn by Miss Jean Suttler. Miss Agnes Berne captivated the audience in the white evening costume with its trimmings of white fox fur.

A country club setting further enhanced the stylish sports models which brought forward the fact that plaid materials will be leaders this winter. Lovely children, between 3 and 6 years of age, were quite as popular as mannequins as the the groups, prancing and turning on the stage to show just what is in vogue for these diminutive folk.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY Early Life at Jamestown.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

By the middle of June, 1607, a town had been built and named Jamestown in honor of the king of England. The settlement consisted of a fort, a church, a storehouse and a little street lined with log huts—now the settlers felt secure from Indian attacks.

Captain Newport, having remained until the settlement was completed, now sailed back to England with a cargo of yellow ore found near Jamestown which the settlers thought was gold.

Many of the colonists were gentlemen adventurers who were not accustomed to hard work and they preferred to explore the thick woods or search for gold rather than clear away timber to make fields for planting.

Not far from Jamestown lived a powerful tribe of Indians called the Paspaheghs who looked upon the white men as intruders and were ever on the alert for a chance to kill them. Tomorrow—Trials of the Settlers.

Time to Jump into FALL Underwear

ALONG comes Old Jack Frost with his snappy weather changes, and of course boys and girls—big and little—need to put on heavier weights of Knit Underwear to keep warm and comfortable and avoid colds and sore throats.

KNIT UNDERWEAR

in the correct style, weight and fabric protects against cold by keeping a blanket of warm air about the body, yet it allows healthful ventilation. Knit Underwear absorbs perspiration steadily and dries evenly, and thus helps to prevent chill. The KNITTED fabric is elastic for free movement and very durable—is easily washed and does not require ironing.

Knit underwear is made for men, women and children in a great many styles of two-piece and union suits, from ankle to knee length, long or short sleeves, high or low neck.

Made in cotton, wool, silk, linen or mixtures in a variety of weights and fabrics, ribbed, flat-knit or mesh, brushed or fleece lined—Knit Underwear can be selected in exactly the right type to suit every person, of every age and occupation, in every climate.

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES.

YOUR FEET.

Are your feet always so comfortable that you are not conscious of them at all? If not, do everything you can to make them so for life isn't worth living if your feet ache.

If you can, go to a chiropodist, even if for only one visit and watch how he treats the feet. Don't be afraid to ask questions for you want to take care of your feet in as professional a manner as possible. If you cannot see a chiropodist, follow these directions:

Soak the feet in warm soapy water for 15 minutes. With a rough towel, rub off all callous spots, and rub them with cold cream to soften the skin. As soon as you remove the feet from the water place little wads of wet cotton over the corns to keep them soft until you are ready to shave them off.

Buy a corn knife and very carefully shave off the horny, top layers of the corns, being very careful not to cut the live flesh. The corns will soon and swell, so this shaving is not hard. Should you cut the skin and draw blood, touch the place with an antiseptic and bind up with clean cotton; on no account must dirt get into such a cut. One chiropodist told me that drawing a little blood from a sore corn is a good thing the blood being bad. But I don't advise you to cut yourself on purpose.

Keep the pad of cotton over a shaved corn and keep the skin moist with oil or cold cream for some days. The corn will come back if the shoes go on rubbing in the same place, otherwise, occasional shaving should cure them. Massage the feet now and then, this rests them.

Rose and Charles—It is possible that your husband's skin is infected from the pimples, as this happens often with dry dusting. Try dusting a little flour of sulphur over each pimple once a day, when there is an opportunity for allowing the sulphur to remain for a half hour or more. An ointment in which there is sulphur makes a more convenient treatment, but not so effective as the plain sulphur. You can retain the sulphur much better if the places you treat with a bit of dampened absorbent cotton.

Tomorrow—A Fine Grained Skin.

ALL WOMEN WHO WORK

Whether in the home, store, shop, mill or office, they are known how often they are really unfit for work. It may be a headache, backache, pain in the side, nervous depression, cramps or those dreadful dragging-down pains, all of which symptoms have their origin in some feminine ailment that is making life a burden. In almost every such case these ailments will yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For a great many years this simple root and herb remedy has been restoring women to health and strength and it will pay every suffering woman to try it. (adv.)

Uncle Ray's Corner Isis Searches For Her Mate

When Isis learned that her husband had vanished, she was filled with sorrow and fear. She cut her hair and ran hither and thither, asking every one she met:

"Have you seen the chest into which Osiris was put?"

By and by she met two children who said that they had seen a chest thrown into the Nile.

Nile. Though Isis did not then know it, the chest had been washed across the sea to the city of Byblos, on the coast of Syria. It was hidden by a bush which a magic power caused to grow to great size.

The king of Syria caused the bush to be cut, and his men discovered the chest.

"A voice from above," as the Egyptian story-tellers declared, told Isis where she could find her husband. She went to Byblos, obtained the chest and returned to Egypt.

Not satisfied with the evil he had already done, she gained the body and cut it into 14 parts. The faithful Isis searched for the parts, and brought them together.

"Come back to your body, Osiris," she prayed.

The god had gone to a distant place, but hearing the loving prayer he returned to his body. Yet it was no longer possible that he should live and rule on earth. He went to the underworld, to rule over the spirits of those who had passed from earthly life.

The god Horus, son of Isis and Isis, fought against Set. The conflict was furious and both were injured; but Horus came off the victor. For a time he ruled over Egypt. It was a claim of Egyptian kings that they were all of divine descent.

The priests of Egypt often told the story of the death of Osiris and how he had come back to life. Sometimes they acted out the events in what we may call "sacred plays." Certain animals, such as the bull and the goose, were believed to be sacred to the evil Set. These were killed in sacriety, and were supposed to help life to return to Osiris.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Honor Bridal Party With Buffet Supper

Miss Louise Newton and Thomas Wilkes McDaniel, whose marriage will be an interesting social event of today, were honor guests Tuesday evening at the buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Newton entertained at the Piedmont Driving Club preceding the wedding rehearsal at the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

The long table placed at the far end of the ballroom, where the guests were entertained, was beautifully decorated with a mass of pink roses, artistically arranged in baskets alternating with burning pink tapers and pink spun candy baskets.

Miss Newton, the lovely bride-elect, wore an attractive gown of shell-pink satin, the circular skirt having godets of silver lace.

Mrs. Oscar Newton received her guests wearing a gown of hyacinth blue chiffon fashioned over pink satin. The guests included members of the bridal party, out-of-town guests and a few close friends.

They are as follows: Miss Ann Fletcher, president; Miss Mary Blackstock, vice president; Miss Martha MacKnight, treasurer, and Miss Carolyn Baker, secretary.

Local Woman's Club Will Wage Fight For Cleaner City

Systematic plans were made by the Atlanta Woman's club at its regular meeting Monday afternoon, to wage an active campaign for an Atlanta with clean streets, highways and beautiful boulevards.

According to Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the club, a conference will be called at an early date, with the heads of the various civic organizations, for the purpose of discussing the subject and having the work under way. The club will also advocate an educational campaign throughout the schools.

Dr. Richard Orme Flynn, one of Atlanta's gifted orators, addressed the Atlanta Woman's club on "England and Its Interests." Dr. Flynn was very interesting in his description of the labor conditions of England, its literary phase of life and the results of the great world war, on the life of its people. He brought out the fact that the minds of the people were greatly agitated by the different forms of creeds and religions and that the country seemed in a state of unrest and confusion. Many are unemployed for whom the government is forced to provide. He spoke of the great pleasure afforded himself and his party, in visiting Kenilworth and hearing the wonderful word pictures drawn of the past, by the very unusual guide, who has a remarkable gift for visioning the past scenes and the great beauties of the surroundings.

The treasurer of the club reported $1,500 paid during the past month on club indebtedness, making a total of $4,000 of club indebtedness reduced during the present administration.

Resolutions were also adopted, commending the Christian Science Monitor for its splendid supplement issued, carrying the reasons why people should come to Atlanta.

Press Huddleston, announced the presentation of the United States navy band, in this city November 2, under the auspices of the Lions' club and the Woman's club, and spoke about the splendid services and wonderful music of this organization.

Cissie Loftus Cancels Engagement.

Tickets which were purchased for the scheduled appearance of Cissie Loftus, famous mimic, here tonight, will be good for the lecture of John Drinkwater, noted British poet and playwright, who as the next attraction of the program of the Drama league, will speak on the night of November 4 in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's club.

Cissie Loftus, owing to a sudden illness, has been forced to cancel her Atlanta engagement, the Drama league announces.

To Address Children.

Coke Davis, vice president of the Atlanta safety council, will address the pupils of the Ponce de Leon Avenue school on "Accident Prevention," this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the school building.

V. C. Durham a Visitor.

V. C. Durham, quarantine inspector of the state board of entomology at Savannah, is in Atlanta for several days on business.

JOANNA

BY H. L. GATES

Joanna, "Miss Twenty-seven of the silk counter," described as "Joanna of the skirts too short and the lips too red and the tongue too pert," suddenly is summoned to the private office of Graydon, owner of the great department store in which she is employed. The summons is delivered by "Mr. Good Morning," the silk counter name for darkness, the important buyer, whom the girls ridicule but fear. Joanna, bewildered, utterly discouraged at the thought that she is to be dismissed for some unknown offense, conceals her concern and goes arrogantly, chin tilted, into the presence of the "Old Man," whom few of the employees have ever seen. Graydon receives her kindly, and questions her as to her family and friends. She assures him she has neither counting her dancing boys who are as light in the head as they try to be on their feet. She forgets to tell him of John, a school boy lover, who still is her devoted admirer. She thinks Graydon is merely amusing himself with her, and is antagonistic to him. Suddenly he hands her a little leather-bound book and a letter, addressed to her in care of the store. When she reads the first paragraph Joanna awakes and would have fallen if Graydon had not caught her and gently settled her in a chair.

INSTALLMENT III.

Into the Kingdom of Money.

For a long time Graydon silently looked down upon the girl who had swayed into the chair. She, too, was silent, motionless. The letter he had given her with the small, leather-bound book, sheek in her hand. She held it before her, an arm resting across her knees. Her eyes started at the typed lines. Now and again she closed her lids tightly, shook her head ever so little, and parted her lips again, as if the words on the paper blurred before the fascination of her gaze and she had straightened them out by shaking the confusion out of her brain.

Once she let her hand droop, and kept her eyes closed for what might have been a half a minute. Then, with a suddenness that seemed as if she were clutching at a shadow that she didn't want to fade, she brought the paper closer and read each line again in frantic haste.

As Graydon watched her the wraith of something very tender, and ineffable, hovered about his lips. Out of the eccentric pattern of the exaggerated type she represented, the excessively obtrusive "daughter of today," a new shape emerged. For the moment he forgot the maelstrom that surged outside his office doors—the humdrum of bargaining in the great lavish floors of the department store. The girl, who was one of those who bargained, bargained her wits against the purses of housewives; bargained the shimmer of her hair and the brown of her eyes and the curve of her lips against the world of which the crowds out there were a symbol, became a flower, a delicate, exquisite blossom that some irreverent hot house trader had painted into monstrous gorgeousness for the jaded taste of fools.

The "Old Man," forgetting for the moment the fluctuations in the price of Manchester cotton and the season's demand for Highland plaids, pictured her as rhododendron suddenly bewildered by a beam of sunlight breaking through a mist.

And then Joanna looked up at him. Doubts and confusion had gone from her face. It was lit with the taunting smile of one who has solved a riddle.

"Somebody needs a doctor! Who's crazy, you or I?"

Graydon shook his head. "It's all very real, Joanna! You came in to me, a while ago, a little lady of very small estate. When you go out again, you will be a veritable princess in a kingdom of money!"

Joanna crumpled back in her chair. She brushed her forehead with the back of a hand.

"Please, Mr. Grayson," she pleaded: "Don't make a fool of me." The earnestness, the seriousness of the man who confronted her puzzled her, and sent her floundering for other words. He pointed to the paper she still held in her hand.

"Read it aloud," he said. "Perhaps the sound of it will help you." After she had murmured her persistent doubt, "It says it's from a bank!" she obeyed him, mechanically.

"And it says," she began: "We have the good fortune to notify you that there has been placed on deposit with this institution, to your credit, the sum of one million dollars, in cash and securities, subject to your personal check and such other disposition as you may wish to make of these funds."

"We beg to say, here, that this deposit has been made by a patron of this institution who has not confided to us the source of your funds nor the motives which have assembled them for you. We have not considered it necessary to enquire into these matters, because of the identity of the depositor, nor as to his reasons for the injunction upon us to not disclose his identity to you."

The girl faltered, and looked again at Graydon, who was watching her intently. The frown still wrinkled in her brow. Her eyes still gaped. "You see?" she argued desperately: "I told you—somebody's loose that ought to be in a hospital!"

Graydon pointed to the paper shaking in her trembling fingers. She read for him the closing paragraph:

"We are sending you, through your employer, your bank book with an entry of our account. We are given to understand that Mr. Graydon will amplify certain remarks included above. We trust —"

Her voice droned off through the perfunctory assurance of advice and assistance. When she raised her eyes Graydon had dropped into his chair, across the table from her. She looked at him blankly.

Graydon spoke deliberately, choosing his words, as if conscious of his need to penetrate the understanding of the girl whose mind struggled against a portent that overwhelmed her.

"You may accept each sentence with complete confidence," he said. "The money is there, ready for you. Downstairs, at the curb, my own car is waiting to take you, and your bank book, to the bank. There you will sign our name, just a scratch of the pen, and the rest—"

He paused, and his fingers again played with the jade paper weight. In that slight pause Joanna—whose philosophies were fruits of many wisdoms—though she saw the thing that, for the time had been driven from her thoughts.

"She was right, after all! Only, it hadn't come in the way she expected. A pretty little play, with all its elaborate stage setting! A million dollars! A new kind of gesture made by some idiot who thought she wouldn't be 'wise' in time. A million dollars; then, 'the rest.' And then the pompous gift of money recalled as laughingly as it had been craftily given! Ridiculous!"

Joanna dropped the letter to the floor and rose. Her lips set into a line that was out of place against her pencilled contours.

"Now you're getting at it, Mr. Graydon!" she exclaimed. "I thought there'd be a catch in it. What's the rest?"

The man only shook his head, rather sadly, as if he suffered a little before the spectacle of a girl, fresh and young and lovely, who must ever be on the alert for "the catch in it."

"There are no obligations," he said, still shaping his words slowly. "The stupendous gift is yours without conditions. Is that the word you would have me use, conditions?"

Before this rebuff Joanna again was speechless. Graydon went on: "You may not even ask a question. In return, none will be asked of you. It is possible that you shall never know the name of your benefactor. I know his reasons. I know the motives. But I may not reveal them to you. I may only say, and I hope you will have a little trust in me—that you need have no trouble and that there is nothing unpleasant about your mystery."

Joanna sank to her chair. "You mean," she protested, "You mean that someone—someone I don't even know—made me rich and that I don't have to—ask me—?" She could not go on. All her reasonings, her wisdoms, her safeguards were beaten away as if they were futile things. She heard Graydon say what still maddened her because of the puzzle in it; because it left her helpless.

"You will not be asked to give—anything!"

The office door opened. Graydon had touched his buzzer and the secretary entered—the strangely soft-mannered, unobtrusive girl in whom Joanna had first seen utter unattractiveness, but who had caused her to wonder, after a bit, if her own lips were not a little too scarlet.

On the girl's arm was Joanna's wrap and in her hand was Joanna's hat. It was the same fur wrap Joanna had thought to be in direful risk of the pawnshop when Graydon summoned her from the silk counter, presumably to her dismissal for some unknown offense. The hat was the one still unpaid for.

The sudden sight of the fineries she could not afford, either to have or not to have, sent her into a torrent of hysterical laughter. Graydon gave the secretary a hasty sign. Both waited until the girl in the chair quieted, her laughter dying away in stifled sobs. The secretary moved toward her, then, and held her wrap.

Automatically Joanna drew the cloak around her slender figure. Then she fixed her hat. Suddenly she turned, faced Graydon again and cried out to him:

"But what am I to do—with the money?"

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE:

Cause for Alarm

Facts about ATLANTA

Steadily mounting bank deposits and clearings bear certain testimony to Atlanta's substantial growth. The third week in September registered the highest bank clearings ever known in Atlanta, with one day of that week, Friday, totaling more than $81,000,000 as compared to $58,000,000 the same day of the same week of last year.

A study of Atlanta's bank clearings since 1893, taking the years at intervals of five, is convincing evidence of the natural growth of our business. For example:

1900$	96,375,251.22
1905	185,625,644.98
1910	574,164,916.77
1915	739,294,232.63
1920	3,256,765,739.40

The peak year of Atlanta's clearings was 1919, when the total clearings amounted to $3,290,186,377.42. The clearings in 1924 amounted to $2,895,551,194.75. For 1925 the clearings will likely equal, if not exceed, the year 1919. The growth in deposits for 1925 indicates the most remarkable banking year the city has ever known.

Atlanta's banking history dates from the civil war. The Lowry bank is a type of the growth of Atlanta's banks. The demands of a rapidly growing wholesale grocery business led to the establishing of the Lowry bank in 1861. The Atlanta National bank was organized in 1865 with a capital of $200,000 and it was the Atlanta National bank which set the pace of the banks of the Southeast with the first million dollars on deposit.

The American Trust and Banking company, organized in 1890 and reorganized in 1896 as the Fourth National bank, was the first bank in Atlanta to own and control its building, the Fourth National having erected its present commodious banking house and office building in 1905. The Third National bank, now the Citizens and Southern bank, was organized in 1896. The Fulton National bank was organized in 1910. The Atlanta Trust company was organized in 1910.

Atlanta has a number of strong and trusted savings banks. The Georgia Savings bank was organized in 1899 and is one of the largest savings banks in the south. There are 151,970 savings accounts in Atlanta. The total savings deposits in Atlanta's metropolitan district amount to $37,712,237.66.

The best sign of prosperity— dollars in the Bank

EVERY city's commercial stability is determined by the soundness of its banking institutions. Banks must be safe places in which the people may keep their money. Banks must be forward-looking in the provision of ample credit with which to build, not only great cities, but sustain the vast areas that look to the large cities for their markets and their supplies. Banks must beget the spirit of confidence amongst the business men of every community by exhibiting the basic principles of sound dealing and aggressive enterprise.

Atlanta's twenty-three banks have furnished such a basis for the sound growth of the great business interests of the City, of the State and of the entire Southeast. They have been the pioneers of the financial institutions of the Southeast in rearing from the ashes of the Sixties the industries of a land torn and bleeding from the Civil War. Liberal credits, supplied by the aggressive business men who have directed Atlanta's banks, formed the basis of an agricultural and industrial renaissance which is today bearing its fruitage in the attention which the entire nation is giving to the Southeast.

The profound testimony of Atlanta's bank clearings, from 1893, when the Clearing House was organized, to 1925, at the end of August, tells in graphic eloquence the story of a service which has made Atlanta the financial center of the Southeast and induced the location of the Federal Reserve Bank for the Sixth District. The clearings in Atlanta in 1893 amounted to $60,753,911.13. The clearings for the first eight months of 1925 amount to $2,133,947,193.83. The clearings for the twelve months of 1925 will exceed three billions of dollars. Atlanta's twenty-three banks represent a combined capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than $26,000,000. Deposits in these banks at the first of September, 1925, amount to $145,456,000. The total resources of the Atlanta banks amount to $215,883,234.

The Federal Reserve Bank for the Sixth District, located in Atlanta, has resources amounting to $280,066,878.91, with credit facilities adequate to meet any legitimate demand of the great Southeast today.

Confidence in the soundness of Atlanta's banks is an asset of such vast significance as to fully explain the marvelous development of the multiplied commercial growth of this City and the entire Southeast. Prompt response to every worthy call upon our banks has deepened the confidence of the public until today we have a spirit of cooperation between our banks and the public which underwrites the certain progress of every legitimate business in the City and in the Southeast. Atlanta is justly grateful for the wonderful record of her great banking institutions and therefore safe in her dependence upon these agencies in the strenuous days of growth which await the City, the State and the Southeast.

JUDGE PHIL DAVIS DIES AT LEXINGTON

Lexington, Ga., October 13.—(Special.)—Judge Phil W. Davis, leading lawyer and farmer and one of the leading members of the Georgia legislature for several years, died today at his home here. His death was unexpected and came as a distinct shock to hundreds of friends and associates throughout the state.

Judge Davis formerly was a Baptist minister, but turned his attention to law and there achieved a distinction such as few men have enjoyed. He took a prominent part in affairs of the state from the time he was elected representative from Oglethorpe county until his death. He was regarded as an outstanding Georgia jurist.

Funeral services will be held from the Episcopal Baptist church at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Burial will be in the cemetery.

In addition to his widow, who is one of Georgia's most noted teachers, he is survived by a son, Phil W. Davis, Jr., of Crawford.

EMBARGO ON LOANS TO EUROPE SEEN

Policy which the American government regarded as not proper to approve.

Up to about last March, however, very few proposed loans were disapproved by Washington. At that time the administration put into effect a new broad policy. Nothing was said about it publicly at the time or since, but it became clear that the government at Washington had taken a stand that American bankers should not loan money to those European governments which had failed to begin payments on their debts to the United States government. It was more plainly than probably it has ever been put officially, the American government stopped the loaning of money by private American bankers to European governments as a means of making the European government come around to see Mr. Mellon and make arrangements to pay their prior debts to the United States government. This policy has been put on more supremacist grounds. It has been said that loaning more money to governments already in default, encourages those governments in unsound financial practices and therefore ought to be discontinued.

Since the French government made a start toward refunding its debt to America, but has not yet completed the process, the question has been discussed whether the exhibition of good faith from France is sufficient to lift the ban on the loaning of money by New York bankers to France. From what was said in Washington today, apparently the ban is still on.

Meanwhile, Senator Borah is working at a wholly different angle of these private American loans to Europe, which will be brought up in congress in December, as an incident to the ratification of the refunding arrangements recently made with several European countries. Senator Borah says these private loans to European countries amount to upward of a billion dollars and he queries whether sending such a sum to London, Paris, Berlin, Warsaw and elsewhere is the best use to make of that much American money. In short, while the administration merely sends an informal disapproval on loans to governments in default to the United States government, Borah goes much further and apparently is willing to put a congressional embargo on all loans of American money to all European countries and European corporations.

This attitude of Borah is supported by some important American business interests, chiefly New England manufacturers, some of whom are high in power in the republican party in South America. The money is loaned, for example, to German corporations, that the German corporations use the money to manufacture goods, and that these goods come into competition with American goods in two ways. Some goods made in Europe and financed with American money are sent to America to be sold here in competition with American-made goods. In addition, American money loaned to Germany is in turn loaned by Germany to other European countries, by loaning the money, are enabled to capture South American trade, which might otherwise come to the United States.

All this will bring in December the subject will bring in December an embargo on American capital. There has arisen a school of American thought which insists that American capital be kept at home and used to develop home industries. Persons who hold this theory are as a rule identical with those who believe in very high protective tariff. They realize that the repayment by Europe of the principal and interest of these loans can most readily be made in the form of goods, and therefore will be in America a considerable group of bankers and investors who will want the tariff made low in order to enable Europe to make its interest payments to America.

Many doubt whether it would be possible for America effectively to stop the export of capital. Of course, American international bankers are willing to obey even an informal request not to loan money to European governments that do not pay their debts to the American government. They have been doing that for some gressional action as Senator Borah

ROY B. VERDERY, ASHEVILLE MAN, BUYS HOME HERE

Announcement was made at Avondale Estates sales office Tuesday of the sale of a pretty brick bungalow at Avondale Estates to Roy B. Verderer, who has recently come to Atlanta to make his home.

The purchaser, a former Asheville (N. C.) man, is field engineer of the Atlanta Tube company. The home he has purchased is at 16 Exeter road and is one of the handsomest in Atlanta's new suburb. The consideration was $10,000.

Father Slays Daughter, Then Attempts Suicide, Because She Married

McCull, S. C., October 13.—(Special.)—Because he objected to her marriage, Alfred Wright, a citizen of McCull, this afternoon fired two bullets through the head of his daughter, Annie Mae, killing her instantly, and then cut his own throat with a pocket knife. He is now in the McCull hospital, where little hope is held out for his recovery.

Wright's daughter was married last week to Dilford S. C., a negro. His father, who is now in the McCull hospital, where little hope is held out for his recovery.

After the trial the girl went to the home of her father. This afternoon, while she was sitting at a sewing machine, Wright walked up behind her, fired two shots into her head and, running from the house, cut his own throat.

LYONS VOTES BONDS TO BUILD SCHOOL

Lyons, Ga., October 13.—(Special.)—Election here today for $65,000 bonds for the building and equipping of a modern building to be known as Lyons Consolidated High school carried 246 for and ten against. Work is expected to start soon in order to have it completed to relieve the congestion that now exists in the school here.

Howard Theater.

Handsome gowns and gorgeous furs are featured in the Muse-Howard fashion show being staged at the Howard theater this week. The display is the most pretentious of the kind ever seen in Atlanta and the presentation is on a lavish scale. Sixteen models will participate in the pageant, which was staged by Leroy J. Prinz, and Miss Agnes Verne, famous model, is featured. The screen program is equally entertaining, the feature picture being "He's a Prince," in which Raymond Griffith, the silk hat comedian, is starred. Special effects and lighting effects will add materially to the completeness of the show and there is not a moment that interest is permitted to lag, as the Howard girls introduce some novelty dancing numbers that give added color to the pageant.

seems to contemplate. But money tends to seek its own level like water, and it would be difficult to stop loans by private American bankers to private European banks and European corporations. That is already going on to an extent not publicly known. The head of the state bank of a European country told the writer within a few days that most of the best sugar business in his country is now financed with American money, and that the tendency is growing.

Cotton Market Rallies Under Pressure of Opening Decline

NEW YORK, October 13.—(Special.)—The cotton market today rallied under the pressure of the opening decline, but the recovery was not complete. The market was fairly active today and the trend of prices was generally upward. Following an early decline of 6 to 15 points, the market rallied with the exception of occasional small reactions prices were on the upgrade for the rest of the session, the firmer tone being due to the fact that the market was under considerable pressure at the start. It looked as if some hedge selling had accumulated over the weekend, but this was probably reselling by some of Saturday's buyers, who saw nothing in the early weather news to indicate that Saturday's killing frost predictions had materialized. The opening was barely steady at a decline of 6 to 15 points and active sales were made at 20 to 25 points higher. They closed at 21.55, the general market being closed steady at net advances of 20 to 22 points.
